PRESIDENT TO BE NEUTRAL IN SENATE FIGHT

Indicates He Won't Take Sides in Selection of Robinson's Successor.

BYRNES OUT OF RACE

Senate Leadership, Court Bill Discussed in Funeral Train Conferences.

By The Associated Press

ABOARD ROBINSON FUNERAL TRAIN, Enroute to Little Rock, Ark., July 17—Thirty-eight senators escorting the body of Senator Joseph T. Robinson to his home state took note today of three developments in the close contest for senate Democratic leader:

President Roosevelt indicated his neutrality by conferring with Senator Harrison of Mississippi, one of the candidates. The other, Senator Barkley of Kentucky, previously had been at the White House.

Senator Byrnes of North Carolina withdrew from the race and reportedly backing Harrison.

Harrison and Barkley agreed to a Democratic caucus next Wednesday, in order to settle the issue as soon as possible.

Both the candidates for Robinson's old post were on the train. Besides the senate delegation there were more than a score of house leaders, Postmaster General Farley and other administration leaders. The dominant figures on both sides of the court bill controversy also were in the party.

Senators Wheeler, Democrat of Montana, Burke, Democrat of Nebraska, and Clark, Democrat of Missouri, headed the opposition, while Barkley and Senator Hatch, Democrat of New Mexico, were regarded as Roosevelt spokesmen on the issue.

Hatch and Farley called at the White House yesterday, although both said they discussed other problems.

Out of respect for their dead leader, most senators were reluctant to comment publicly on either the court or leadership issues. Privately they conceded that the battle lines on both questions were being tightly drawn.

Nearly all the Democratic foes of the court bill were inclined to support Harrison for the leadership. Most he and Barkley have pledged their support to the measure but the Kentuckian has been more active in its behalf.

Make White House Call

Harrison and Byrnes were called to the White House yesterday, less than a day after President Roosevelt had written to Barkley urging passage of a court reorganization bill at this session.

"The President had heard," Harrison said afterward, "that some had interpreted the letter to mean that he was thereby injecting himself into the leadership contest.

"He wanted to give me the absolute assurance that neither he nor the administration in any way was taking sides; that that was a matter for the Democratic membership to decide."

A few hours before the funeral train left Washington last night, Byrnes announced his withdrawal. Earlier Burke had said he would back him for the leadership.

Preliminary estimates of votes indicated neither Barkley nor Harrison was likely to develop a decisive lead before the party caucus.

Armistice Sunday

Every phase of the court and leadership controversies was being discussed, however, in dozens of the sleeping-compartment conversations, which were expected to continue throughout the trip.

An armistice will be declared today morning when the funeral train reaches Little Rock.

Senator Robinson's body will lie in state in the Arkansas capitol until mid-afternoon, when the senators and representatives will accompany it to a church service and burial.

Vice President Garner, who has been vacationing for several weeks at Uvalde, Texas, home, will join the congressional delegation at Little Rock. He will return here to Washington in time for the resumption of the court debate Monday.

INFANT AT KENTON SWALLOWS HAIR PIN

X-Rays Follow Its Course with N-Ray Pictures.

Course of the pin was being followed and an operation will be made if deemed necessary.

DENIAL ISSUED BY STEEL CORP.

Republic Officials Make Blanket Answer to Labor Board Charges.

PREPARE FOR HEARING

SWOC, Meanwhile, Seeks To Renew Strike Activities in Company's Plants.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 17—Ten complaints registered against the Republic Steel Corporation by the national labor relations board were covered today by a blanket denial in a statement issued by the company.

"The officials of the corporation wish to state that the charges are without foundation," the statement said, "We are confident that a fair, impartial and complete hearing will establish the falsity of these claims."

Hearing has been scheduled Wednesday in Washington of the complaints which include: locking out of Canton and Massillon employes; discharging 73 for union activity; threatening discharge or layoff for union activity; refusing to rehire strike participants; contributing financial support to local labor organizations; trailing and beating up union organizers; increasing company police force and using it to interfere with peaceful picketing; maintaining arsenals; promoting back to work movements; and interfering with peaceful picketing.

Urge "Back to the Strike"

At a mass meeting here last night, called by the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, speakers urged Republic employes to engage in a "back to the strike" program.

Alex Baliint, SWOC organizer, told the workers that by re-striking the mills they could convince the company it would have to sign a contract.

Samuel Handelman, Cleveland SWOC counsel, cautioned strikers they must distinguish between "genuine scabs" whom he called professional strike breakers, and regular Republic workers who should be treated courteously. "Tell them to come out and make our ranks solid and march to victory with us," he said.

Captain Charles Spoerke, in charge of Cleveland police strike details, in a report for Safety Director Eliot Ness, estimated three fifths of Cleveland workers on strike July 1 have gone back to work.

His report showed 6,400 on strike in four Republic Steel plants July 1 and 5,030 now back at work; 1,049 back at work of 1,350 who were on strike in four knitting mills; 566 out of 3,500 reemployed in two textile plants; and 64 out of 168 back at work in miscellaneous plants.

Judge G. N. Graham at Canton today held a hearing on a CIO injunction petition to restrain Sheriff Joe Nist from interfering with peaceful picketing at the Republic plants there. Picket lines disbanded by the sheriff Wednesday night had not been re-established.

A temporary injunction order of June 25 restricting picketing was made permanent by Judge Graham yesterday.

MARION CO. CROPS SUFFER IN STORMS

Marion county crops and fields were sodden with moisture today, the result of a "rain" wave which supplanted the heat wave of the last 10 days.

Spectacular electrical storms swept Marion and Marion county last night, accompanied by high winds which flattened corn and other crops in many areas. The storms were expected to further delay the wheat harvest, which had reached the threshing stage on most farms.

Last night's storm, in which .95 of an inch of rain fell, marked the fifth rainfall here in five days. It brought Marion's total rain in the last eight days to 2.73 inches, believed to be a record mark for similar periods in recent years.

Better Weather Seen

The official weather forecast of "fair and cooler tonight and Sunday" heightened hopes that at least a temporary cessation of rain was in sight. The highest temperature in Marion yesterday was 89 degrees, with a low of 66. Temperatures a year ago today were 94 and

DEWEES SUSPENDED BY DIRECTOR RUTH

Mayor Requests Action Pending Inquiry Into Shooting in Garey Arrest.

Captain Ora DeWees today was suspended from the city police force by Chief W. E. Marks on order of John V. Ruth, service director. The suspension is for a period not to exceed 29 days and is the outgrowth of the shooting last Tuesday morning of Warren Garey, 32, as Capt. DeWees and Patrolman Henry Tong sought to arrest him on a charge of non-support of his three minor children.

The suspension order, drafted at the direction of Mayor F. C. Smith, signed by Mr. Ruth, and addressed to Chief Marks, reads as follows:

"Pending an investigation of the shooting of Warren Garey, you are hereby instructed to suspend Capt. Ora DeWees for an indefinite period of time not to exceed 29 days."

At noon today after the instructions to suspend DeWees had been handed to Chief Marks by Mr. Ruth, Mayor Smith said he planned a further investigation of the affair. He said he expected to call DeWees for an explanation of the incident.

After receiving the notice of suspension from Chief Marks, DeWees said he had no statement to make at this time, adding that the notice was the first intimation he had of the intention of officials to order his suspension.

Garey was wounded by a bullet fired by DeWees as he fled from the captain and Patrolman Tong in the vicinity of Blake's greenhouse on West Fairground street early Tuesday. The officers were making their second attempt to arrest Garey that morning, having once previously been eluded in a chase from Garey's residence at 610 Lee street. After the shooting DeWees said he had fired at Garey's feet in an effort to stop him and that on his second shot Garey crouched down while running in an apparent effort to hide behind a clump of tall weeds. DeWees said he fired at a distance of about 30 yards.

In the meantime Garey's condition continues to show improvement at the City hospital. Hospital officials, however, were unable to interview today when he would be able to leave the hospital.

Mrs. Antibus, however, said young Warner was in her home of his own volition and that he employed her detective firm to determine whether a young woman living there whom he was courting was in love with him or merely "wanted his money."

Spain Today Rounds Out Full Year Of Civil War

A Draw Now, But Decision May Come Soon; World Watching Conflict Closely.

BY JOHN EVANS

Associated Press Foreign Editor

Spain rounds out a full year of civil war today with an explosive world warding off sparks.

The war is a draw so far but the decision may come soon.

Spain, three-fourths the size of Texas, is fairly evenly divided between the forces of the Madrid-Valencia government and those of General Francisco's insurgents.

Franco holds the western half except a strip 25 by 50 miles from Oviedo to Santander on the northwest coast.

Madrid is the prize. If he takes it, as he twice promised to do "in ten days," Franco predicts he will sweep eastward and conquer all Spain.

The government, starting with a citizen army, has built a new war machine while the man in the street, half-uniformed, dug trenches, built barricades and fought with a hodge podge of arms.

Only the regular army air force brought modern equipment to it in the early days after the insurrection started over night in Spanish Morocco, July 18, 1936.

Foresee Madrid's Fall

For a year the fortunes of war have been with either side. Few expected unfortified Madrid to resist for long. Somehow the militia, with women here and there in the ranks, stood fast while raw recruits were drilled into disciplined soldiers. "Volunteers" from the United States, Russia and France, and anti-Fascist exiles from Italy formed an international brigade that more than once saved the day.

While Spanish "right" and "left" fought over fascism, communism, church, social reforms and the land the world outside tried to keep the little World war from becoming a big one.

Two weeks after the war started, France proposed neutrality by all Great Britain took the lead and formed the 27-nation non-intervention committee which has struggled and quarreled over how to make a "hands off" policy effective.

U. S. DAVIS CUP PAIR SPLIT WITH GERMANS

By The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 17 — Sorrel-topped Don Budge gave the United States an even break in the opening singles matches of the Davis cup interzone finals with Germany today, trouncing Heinrich Henkel, 6-2, 6-1, 6-3 after Bryan M. (Bitsy) Grant of Atlanta had bowed to Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2.

The top-ranking aces of the rival teams thus fully lived up to advance calculations. Von Cramm had little more trouble with the tiny Grant than Budge did with the stolid Henkel.

The series will be resumed Monday with the doubles, pitting Budge and Gene Mako against Von Cramm and Henkel.

On Tuesday, Grant will play Henkel and Budge will meet Von Cramm in the final two singles matches.

The survivor of the series will face Great Britain in the challenge round here July 24-26-27.

FIGHT FOR FULL PAY STILL ON, FIREMEN SAY

Dispute Mayor's Figures and Deny They Agreed To Continuance of Cut.

FURTHER DATA SOUGHT

Make Investigation of City Finances To See If Pay Restoration Is Possible.

City firemen today announced plans for continuing their fight for restoration of 100 per cent pay by having a study made of city finances in an effort to determine whether the city has funds or ways of raising funds for making the restoration. Spokesmen for the committee which represented the firemen at a meeting of the council finance committee and Mayor Smith Thursday night denied today they had agreed to withdraw their request for immediate pay restoration as a result of figures presented at the meeting by the mayor.

The mayor's figures, which show a deficit of $3,313.34 in the city's operating fund for the first half of this year, are disputed by the firemen. The mayor said it is not likely there will be funds which the city can use for restoring the 15 per cent pay cut for a year or two.

Making Investigation

George Haines, chairman of the firemen's delegation, said an attorney, well versed in city finances, has been employed to make an investigation of the city's records and compile figures.

"We have carried the burden of city debt for quite a while and think we are reasonable in asking that our pay be restored," he said.

He said if the figures being compiled by the firemen show there are no funds on hand and that the city has no way of obtaining revenue for the pay restoration, there will be no further demand until such funds are available.

"We don't want to be unreasonable in any of our demands, but if the city is financially able to give it to us, we feel we should be paid in full, he said.

Reasons for Request

Wesley Imlelb, another member of the firemen's delegation, reiterated today the firemen's reasons for asking for the pay restoration: That fire departments in other cities have restored pay and in some instances raised wages; that the cost of living has gone up; that the city had a surplus in March of $6,000 in the gasoline tax and garbage department funds.

Mayor Smith said today he had understood the firemens' committee had accepted his figures and that it was his impression following the meeting that the firemen would not continue their fight.

Robert H. Stief of the council finance committee said today he had received the impression that the firemen had accepted the figures presented to them Thursday night. In view of the fact that no opposition was expressed by them at that time.

Councilman Hayne Rogers, the other finance committee member present Thursday, said "We simply proved that we had no funds available and it was my impression that they understood it." He said that he will not favor restoring the full pay until other bills of the city are met.

City Clerk Brookshire estimated the cost of restoring the pay from 85 per cent to 100 per cent for the 25 firemen, six captains and Chief McFarland would be $16,000 a year.

To Report July 27

Mr. Haines said the results of the firemens' study of city fiances will be presented by them at the next council meeting July 27. He said representatives of the Marion Central Labor Union, several of the affiliates of which signed the formal petitions, probably will also be present.

Groups signing the petitions which were read to council last month and referred to the finance committee for investigation are Buckeye Aerie No. 237, F. O. Eagles, the Marion Food Distributors association, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and several labor groups. The petitions pointed out that firemen have been under 85 per cent pay for 17 months, having been cut when the city's finances were in distress. They contend the financial status of the city has improved to such a point that restorations are possible.

Members of the firemen's delegation were Mr. Haines, Mr. Imelb, Mr. Stief and T. E. Hanawalt, all present Thursday night, and George Kelly.

IRONTON GRAND JURY CALLED

Judge Authorizes Drawing of Special Panel To Study Fund Charges.

COUNTY AUDITOR NAMED

Inquiry Based on Findings of State Auditor in Lawrence County.

By The Associated Press

IRONTON, O., July 17—Common Pleas Judge James Collier today ordered a special grand jury drawn Monday to investigate charges of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson against Lawrence county and school district officials.

The special probing body was called after conferences between Judge Collier, Prosecutor Roy L. Henry and John K. Hawyer, special representative of state Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy.

Its investigations will cover Ferguson's charges of financial irregularities in the office of County Auditor Pearl A. Pratt, padding of bills for milk sold for relief purposes, sale of coal to the county and finances of several school districts.

Auditor Ferguson asked Gov. Martin L. Davey to order a special inquiry by the attorney general. Thomas Burke Jr. of Cleveland, special prosecutor in the county's election fraud cases, was designated to conduct the special investigation. Pratt, county auditor, was one of six indicted on ballot-tampering charges.

Judge Collier ordered also the recall for one day of a former grand jury and charged it to investigate three slayings, including those of Mae Davis Lewis and Evans Barnett, whose bullet-torn bodies were found on an isolated road three weeks ago, and of Ben Addie who, the prosecutor charged, was killed by his wife.

Reliable court house sources indicated an agreement was reached between county and state officials to permit the special grand jury alone to investigate charges against officials. It previously had been reported the regular grand jury might probe financial irregularities involving Dan C. Rapp, resigned deputy auditor, who gave state's evidence in the election fraud cases in which he also was indicted.

QUIZ 2 WOMEN IN SLAYING OF R. I. PHYSICIAN

Attractive Secretary of Slain Man for Eight Years Is Questioned.

HER ROOMMATE HELD

Secrecy Surrounds Investigation of Shooting of Fashionable Obstetrician.

By The Associated Press

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 17—Two comely women were the center of interest today in the mysterious murder of Dr. George W. Webster, fashionable physician.

The physician was shot to death in the doorway of his home here early yesterday.

Questioned by police yesterday and released to appear when wanted, pretty Dorothea Gilligan, secretary for eight years to the slain 50-year-old homeopathic obstetrician, in an interview today said the murder was "horrible."

She refused to discuss the case further saying police warned her not to.

"More than you'll know," she responded to a question as to whether the case was more horrible than when she first heard about it.

Elizabeth Prince, 25, roommate of Miss Gilligan, also was questioned.

Silent About Investigation

Neither woman has been charged with any crime and Deputy Superintendent James Cusick of the detective division would not indicate definitely the exact course of the investigation.

Miss Prince was questioned yesterday by police, who kept her identity secret. Released, she again was taken into custody last night, and held in the lock-up. Cusick revealed her identity today.

Whether she would be questioned about the doctor's patients—whom she would know because of her friendship for the Gilligan girl—or whether police expected to learn from her something about the physician's private life the police would not indicate.

Cusick late yesterday said police had traced Dr. Webster's movements during the 12 hours prior to "his" being killed by a person who fired two .45 calibre bullets into his body as he came home after 1 a. m. yesterday.

He died at Homeopathic hospital on the operating table, his last words being "I don't know who could have done this to me."

Meanwhile, the family of the slain obstetrician, comprising his wife and seven-year-old daughter and his father, Dr. Samuel Webster of Westerly, R. I., prepared to attend funeral services tomorrow afternoon in fashionable Central Congregational church.

The New Bedford, Mass., Standard Times today said in an exclusive interview Miss Gilligan asserted she couldn't think of "any living soul who would have wanted to kill Dr. Webster."

Miss Gilligan related, the paper said, she worked for Dr. Webster "almost ever since I left New Bedford eight years ago. I lost my father in 1932. He (Dr. Webster) was so good to all of us then. He took care of my mother then, and my brother. He was a fine man and he had a lovely family."

The interview, the paper said was given at her Providence home after she had returned yesterday from police headquarters where she checked names of the physician's patients with police.

Cusick ordered Miss Gilligan brought to police headquarters last night, after other promising leads in the investigation were discarded. He questioned her only a few minutes, then ordered her held incommunicado over night.

Cusick said she was "linked" with the Webster case, but would not discuss the nature of the connection.

"I'll say nothing tonight," he remarked, "but there will be developments tomorrow."

Your Health

BY DR. R. S. COPELAND

Chronic Indigestion.

EACH OF us at some time or other has suffered from gas, with discomfort after meals "Indigestion" is a common experience. But it is a pity that persistent indigestion is a symptom too often ignored. As a matter of fact, it may be the forerunner of some serious disturbance.

That it is important carefully to choose our food is pretty generally recognized. It is pretty bad, however, that many of us overlook that it is not so much what we eat, as it is how to eat it. That is why there is so much trouble. Many persons are "fussy" about the choice of food but neglect their eating habits. Hasting eating, for example, is a short cut to indigestion. Proper choice of food and proper chewing of food make a combination that promotes digestion. Let me warn all of you against the dangers of "bolting" food and of eating at irregular hours. To do these things is a common weakness, and too frequently they lead to many of the chronic disturbances.

Occasionally there are attacks of indigestion that are the result neither of the food nor of the manner of eating. They may be caused by an irritation or inflammation of the stomach. Congestion is one of the effects of some disorder involving the lining of this organ. Symptoms here may be the first sign of an ulcer, tumor, cancer or some other serious disorder of the stomach.

For this reason, I advise every person who suffers from chronic indigestion to consult with a doctor. It is particularly important for the person who complains of distress two or three hours after eating to find out what is wrong. Such symptoms may be caused by a small ulcer; if the presence is recognized in the early stages, it may disappear entirely by following a proper diet. If neglected, the ulcer being permitted to run on for several years, relief is possible only by means of an operation. Of course, this unpleasant outcome should be avoided and can be.

Never depend on self-medication. Home remedies may give relief because of their alkaline content, but such relief is only temporary.

Bear in mind that these symptoms are nature's warnings. Do not ignore them.

In most instances, the doctor will advise a careful X-ray examination of the stomach and intestines. This is the only scientific way of getting to the bottom of the trouble.

As I have pointed out, many digestive disorders are caused by faulty eating habits or the wrong choice of foods. If the discomfort persists in spite of better eating habits and the use of proper foods, it is absolutely necessary to consult with the doctor. This advice is of particular importance to persons past middle life.

Answers to Health Queries.

C.K. Q.—What would cause an occasional extremely irregular heart beat? I have been examined but have been told that the only trouble is due to a nervous heart. However, this condition or disturbance still exists at intervals. What would you advise?

A.—Overcome the underlying nervousness first of all. Make every effort to improve your general health. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

B.G. Q.—Is there any cure for goiter other than operation?

A.—This depends upon the type of goiter as well as upon the other underlying circumstances. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. F.S. Q.—Will you please advise me about vitaligo? I have had it for six years and no one else in my family has it.

A.—This is loss of pigment or the coloring matter of the skin. For further particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

PENSION REFUNDS RECEIVED BY SOME

Payments Made by Rail Workers Under Old Act Are Returned.

Part of the approximately $50,000 which is expected to come to Marion railroad employes from the millions of dollars the government is refunding as a result of the passage of the carriers' taxing act, a new pension system, has arrived, a check-up showed today. About 900 employes of the Erie railroad here have received refunds amounting to three and a half per cent of their pay from March 1, 1936, to Jan. 1, 1937, the amounts paid in under the abandoned railway retirement act.

Section hands on the Pennsylvania here, numbering about 20, have received both the 10-month refund and a three fourths of one per cent refund for the period from Jan. 1, 1937, to July 1. The Erie workers have yet to receive this year's refunds which represent the difference between the per cent actually paid and the per cent required under the new retirement act.

The Big Four workers, totaling about 100, have received nothing yet and are not expected to obtain the refunds until August, officials said today.

Approximately 60 workers at the Chesapeake & Ohio here will also share in the refunds.

Meanwhile, none of the roads through Marion has received instructions as to how to proceed in handling retirements under the new act, Erie officials said approximately 10 applications have been made by veteran employes for pensions.

M'MURRAY TO TOUR WITH HEIDT BAND

Former Marion Man Press Agent for Well-Known "Name" Orchestra.

As press agent and talent scout for Horace Heidt and his famous Brigadiers, George H. McMurray, former resident of Marion and member of The Star staff, will begin a two-month road tour with the band the last of July, according to a communication received here.

Horace Heidt

The tour will take the band through eight states and Canada. The only Ohio dates set so far are Youngstown and Akron. Returning to New York City the first of Oct. the band will play Loew's State theater for a week and then go to The Biltmore hotel for at least six months before leaving for the west coast to make pictures in Hollywood.

Mr. McMurray became press agent and talent scout about two weeks ago after three months with the Columbia Broadcasting Corp. preparing morning radio news broadcasts, and among his duties will be establishing connections with the "name" columnists and newspapermen. When he went with the Heidt organization mention of the change was made in several of the well-known trade papers, including Variety, Billboard and Radio Daily.

Heidt and his Brigadiers are on the air every Monday night at 8 over a CBS coast-to-coast hookup, and are on the Mutual network Tuesday and Friday nights at midnight and Saturday night at 8. Music Corporation of America, which manages most of the big orchestras, rates Heidt's Brigadiers fourth in the nation in popularity.

Jack Stinnett, Associated Press columnist, recently wrote of the band: "Take all the dance bands in New York, put them in a hat, shake well and drawing musicians, one by one, you will not be able to pull out an aggregation which for dance rhythms and an evening's entertainment can surpass Horace Heidt's Brigadiers." The Brigadiers are 32 people, including the orchestra, men's glee club, the Four King Sisters and Lysbeth Hughes, harpist and vocalist.

As talent scout Mr. McMurray has been assigned to augment the present group with an unusual act and another comedy number.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS PLANNED BY CHURCH

Board To Raise Money for Debt Payment and Redecorating Work.

Methods of raising money to liquidate the balance of church indebtedness and to redecorate the church, are being studied by a finance committee of the Emanuel Lutheran church as a result of action taken at a recent meeting of the congregation.

The congregation approved action of the vestry to pay off all debts and to redecorate the edifice, by Sept. 8, 1938, if possible.

On that date the twentieth anniversary of the erecting of the present place of worship will be celebrated. Total cost of the church property at the time the church was dedicated on Sept. 8, 1918, was $78,664.92. All but a few thousands of dollars church indebtedness has been cleared.

The redecorating program will include installing new lighting fixtures.

Ivan Graham is chairman of the finance committee in charge of raising the money.

H. L. Albract was recently elected the church's delegate to the annual convention of the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church Sept. 7-10 at Greenville. O. J. J. Stiffler will be the alternate.

CANVASS PLANNED BY CALVARY CHURCH

Board of Stewards Plan Annual Financial Drive.

The annual "every member canvass" of Calvary Evangelical church will be conducted next week under auspices of the board of stewards.

Members of the board will endeavor to contact all members of the church in making provision for the work of the new conference year which will begin Aug. 1.

On Sunday, July 25, the congregation will give a special "silent offering" for the purpose of closing creditably all of the accounts of the church year now ending.

This offering, Rev. J. W. Heininger, pastor, explained, will be carried out on the basis of the teachings of the Bible, not merely on the basis of the tithe, but "according to ability."

"Calvary church believes that financial offerings are as much a part of sincere worship as praying is, for it is an expression of life that finds its source in right relationships with God," Rev. Heininger said.

Two Hundred Words

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. S. P. RICCOBENE

Pastor, the Covenant Presbyterian Church of America.

TEXT: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." John 1:1.

THE church news editor called me and said: "Can you have a sermon ready for the Saturday edition?" I replied in the affirmative. It was further stipulated that there would be space for only two hundred words. "Only two hundred words." What could I say in two hundred words that would be of value to the readers of this page? I suddenly realized as never before that my words were not important. My message is the message of the scriptures. The gospel which means "good news." The scriptures have Christ as their center. Its one preeminent theme. Christ is called "The Word." "The Word of Life. It is of Him the scriptures speak. Christ in His person and work, in His mission and offices, in His first and second advents. He is the glorious topic of the Bible, its sum. Toward Him all its lines converge; in Him all its voices harmonize and blend; in Him its promises and predicitions have their fulfillment.

Reader, will you give intelligent heed to the following words from the scriptures?

"For the Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

"Being born again; not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever."

"Now ye are clean through the Word which I have spoken unto you."

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

"O Word of God Incarnate,
O wisdom from on high,
O Truth unchanged, unchanging,
O light of our dark sky;
We praise Thee for the radiance
that from the hallowed page,
A lantern to our footsteps, shines
on from age to age."

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon of the Lazy Nine loses her ranch house and barn in a fire, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch and court Kay. She distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings finds them and murders Scrap, using Ted's gun. Ted crawls to an unknown shack where a girl named Marion nurses him through a week of delirious fever. The gun is found and Sheriff Farley trails Ted to the shack, but passes it by.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

Best To Stay Hidden

IT was late afternoon before Ted came out of the heavy sleep into which he had slipped after his lapse into unconsciousness.

In the long day that had passed, Marion had had plenty of time to think over the surprising events of the morning.

It was clear that, if Scrap Johnson had been murdered, Ted would be the one to whom suspicion would inevitably point. There were two possibilities — either Ted's shot had not gone wild, as he had supposed, or someone else had come along and murdered the man, framing Ted as the killer.

In any case, the longer Ted could stay hidden away, until he regained strength to fight for himself, the better. No matter how much his mother and sister and the mysterious "Kay" might need him, everyone was better off for the moment if he stayed right where he was.

As for herself, she couldn't leave her hiding place for another 10 days anyway, and she would infinitely rather put in the time nursing Ted back to health and strength, than to be alone with her anxious thoughts of her father.

Resolving to make the position clear to Ted as soon as she could, Marion came and sat beside him, as he roused himself.

Outlining to him his side of the situation, as she saw it, Marion went on to tell him of her own predicament.

"My father is in desperate straits of some sort," she ended, "and under the circumstances I have no choice but to let him work things out in his own way. The one thing I must do, is to wait here for the full time he set. Then, if he hasn't come, I must go back to find him."

"How about the man you're engaged to?" Ted asked.

"He is off on a prospecting trip," Marion answered, "and he won't be back for another month. I hope to Heaven's sake, that my father and I will be safely back in Missoula before that time."

Someone Outside?

Ted slowly pondered this information. "What you say about me is true, all right," he answered at last, "I wouldn't be any good to anybody right now, I reckon, I can squash this murder talk easy enough as soon as I'm strong enough to go back and tell them where they get off. With me missing, some of the neighbors will give my mother and sister a helping hand for a while, anyway. And Kay—" He paused, and a slow color crept into his face.

"I wonder if Kay's heard this murder talk," he said.

"Who is Kay?" Marion asked gently. "Are you engaged to her?"

"I wish to God I were," Ted burst out. "But there's no chance of that! All I ask is to be near her and help her rebuild her ranch house, and....look here, I want to tell you about her!" He eagerly described Kay, and the problem she was up against. "I don't know what she'll be thinking about my not turning up. I wonder if she's heard this murder talk?"

"She won't believe it any more than I do," Marion snorted. She felt his forehead and added with decision, "You've talked enough, now. Lie back and rest while I get your supper. If you want to get back to her as soon as possible, you must do just as I tell you!"

"Gosh, I hope you two will meet some time," Ted murmured, as he gratefully obeyed. "You sure would take to each other!"

"I hope we will meet." Marion turned away, then stopped suddenly, listening. "What's that?"

"What?" Ted asked sleepily. "I didn't hear anything."

"I thought I heard someone moving outside." Marion crossed to the window and tried to see out the narrow crack between the boards, but only the empty clearing with the late afternoon sunlight, shining on the top branches of the pines was in sight.

She went to the door and cautiously opened it, stepping out a minute on the steps. Then, as she still saw no signs of life, she came in again, pulling the door shut.

"It must have been some animal prowling about," she observed.

There was no answer from Ted, and she smiled as she looked over at him, deeply sunk again into health-giving sleep. Stepping over beside him, she lightly put her hand on his forehead and, still smiling, gazed down at him a moment. Then, she quietly went about getting supper ready for him, when he should wake.

Passionate Outburst

As Kay stood at the door of the mess shack and watched the sheriff ride away with his posse, she felt stunned with the sick reaction to the news she had just heard.

One action solution after another flashed through her mind, only to be discarded. It was all a terrifying mystery, and her thoughts kept coming back to the dread certainty that Ted was dead or desperately wounded somewhere.

Dozens of questions that she had asked the sheriff came to her. Why hadn't she found out whether Scrap Johnson's gun had been discharged? Why—a long shuddering breath escaped her.

"There now, honey, don't you take it so hard!" Seth came up behind her, and put a comforting hand on her shoulder. "Looks kind of black for this Gaynor fellow, but after all, he's nothing to us. We can go along on our own, rebuilding, just as well as though he was here."

"I think you are all perfectly heartless!" Kay blazed, whirling about and facing Seth with flashing eyes. "All you think about is how it is going to affect us! You're ready to use his brains and his plan, and then just let him die like a dog somewhere!"

"Why, Kay!" Seth regarded her with open-mouthed amazement. "What's got into you? The sheriff is off this minute searching for him, and—"

"Yes—so that he can accuse him of murder!" Kay broke in passionately. "You're all waiting like a pack of blood hounds to tear him to pieces on no evidence at all! He's not a murderer, I tell you! If he killed Scrap Johnson it was a fair fight, or more likely, with the odds against Ted. He's not a murderer!"

Kay ran down the steps and over to her cabin. Seth let out a long low whistle as he watched her flying figure. Then he slowly shook his head and made his way over to the bunk house.

Kay finds Josh knows a good bit about the shooting, Monday.

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Insists Lillian Must Tell Reason for Leaving.

LILLIAN LOOKED at Dicky with the blandest stare possible when, addressing her as Sapphira, he told her to "come clean" with her real reason for rushing the four young people away from the first restaurant at which we stopped.

"I haven't the slightest idea of what you mean," she told him stiffly. "You heard me say that I saw something objectionable, something which made it impossible for us to take them in there. Am I to understand that you wish details?"

"That's your story, and you're sticking to it," he gibed. "Please permit me the pleasure of telling you that I don't believe a word of it. You saw nothing around that restaurant which would justify your sanitary soul in rushing away from it. The dump's noted for its fussy cleanliness—make a sort of fetish of it. Nay, nay, little one. You'll have to think up a better one than that."

"Did I say anything about any violation of the sanitary regulations?" she countered. "I simply said that I saw something objectionable about the place. Can I help it if you jump to conclusions?"

Her tone was that of a querulous child, and Dicky was plainly bewildered. But a great light had dawned upon me.

"Was it by any chance, a license plate you didn't expect which upset you?" I asked quietly.

The bland stare which she had bestowed upon Dicky disappeared, and she turned a humorously alive face to me.

"I thought you'd finally get it if I waited long enough," she said.

"Oh!" and a couple of oh's," her big husband commented, and Dicky regarded the three of us truculently.

"I suppose you three hick comedians expect to be billed as the 'High Class Comedy Trio'," he growled. "But, let me tell you in the words of the ever lamented Queen Victoria, 'We are not amused'. If you expect me to play up to you in whatever scheme you're concocting, you'll have to let me in on the ground floor. Otherwise, I'm mighty likely to spill the beans without meaning any harm."

Lillian looked at him witheringly.

"You mean you will spill the beans if we don't tell you what's up?" she asked. "All right, Blackmailer Mongoose, here's where you find out things."

Pleased With Music

Dicky spread his hands with an expostulating gesture.

"The names she calls me, yet!" he said resignedly, "und I only vants to know 'vings."

"Hold it!" Harry Underwood warned. "The kids are coming back."

We watched them with pleased approval as Hank and Bill, with manifest pride in their office, led the girls back to our table.

They were justified in their pride, I told myself, as I watched the lovely, animated faces of the two girls. And I gave myself a pat on the back for the scheme I had concocted for giving two or three days of idyllic pleasure to the two school boys who so admired Marion and Carolyn.

"This sure is the place!" Hank said with a man-of-the-world air as he pulled out Carolyn's chair.

"Good music, isn't it?" Lillian queried.

"Oh marvelous!" Carolyn gurgled, "And that divine cellist would simply tear your heart out with his low notes. And am I the lady with the allure! He was giving me the lingering wish—I—knew—you—look every time we passed him. Hank noticed it, didn't you, Darling?"

Just Things

Collectors.

MOST folks are blessed or have the ill luck (which ever way you care to put it) in having a yen to devote their spare moments to some particular bit of self-expression or garnering some special item such as having the most flowers in the garden, or pointing with pride to a flock of autographs. We haven't, and we didn't think so much about it until someone intimated in a polite way, that, while there really was nothing amiss about folks who didn't, only most folks did have a "hobby." We do feel a bit better about it now since we queried a fellow workman on the topic and found that he failed to register on this particular human trait, also. We agree, we're a good teammate for an Egyptian mummy when it comes to making conversation along the line of collecting elephants, rocks, seashells or the ilk, but we do believe we make a good listener, and a genuinely interested one, too, but we just can't think of a thing we'd like to collect. Old glass would be elegant and colorful, dolls would be interesting, coins must give one a swell feeling of wealth and affluence, and there's ever so many things other that one might build from. Speaking of collectors, we met up with an off-the-beaten path one recently. She surprised everyone by asking her hostess at a bridge party if she might have the jokers in the decks of cards. Yes, she was making a collection, and from a mental picture, they would be attractive.

Odds.

THIS department is not viewing the world at large with any too friendly mien these days, and there's a reason. Imagine trying to train down to a point of getting the old chassis into a "mimsey" bathing suit so that when you meet the relatives on vacation it'll not be the same old tune, "well, well, I see you still can eat," or something equally as touching, with a flock of delicious recipes of last words in good things to eat, pouring into one's lap. Yes, it's the third annual hot weather menu contest going right to town, and the recipes are most alluring. We're not putting anything out, of course that wouldn't be fair, the only thing we can say is that they're delicious, and whatever else the sponsors find out, here's one item that's in the bag right now. The women of Marion and vicinity do know what's good to cook and how to prepare it. There's money in them there recipes, so why not get in?

Words.

NOT that we are given to spring-ing funny words, but here is one that we never heard of, much less used, "hoddy doddy." Not that it is so elegant, and if you say it you'd better be good on the run, for it's a fighting word. Here are some of the things it means: Simpleton, tomfool, nizy, zany, trifler, babbler, oaf, lout, loon lown, dullard, doodle, gowk, crone well, that's about enough isn't it?

HOUSE PAINTER ERRS.

By United Press

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—When Louis G. Hoagland drove up in front of his home, he had to look twice to see if he was wrong. In his absence, a house painter had painted the home—a big mistake—because of the house he had been commissioned to do was in a different neighborhood.

A mixture of 95 per cent crushed dolomite and five per cent asphaltic cement, applied hot, is being used at St. Louis for economically giving street pavements frictionless, glareless surfaces.

CITIZENS GROUPS AIR STRIKE VIEWS

By The Associated Press

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 17—A national conference of Citizens Committees charged yesterday that "certain public officials in high places" had refused to protect American citizens in their right to work.

Two hundred ministers, college professors and business men from 70 communities at the convention pledged themselves to "restore and protect those constitutional rights that have been taken from citizens by unworthy officials."

The delegates met at the call of the Johnstown Citizens Committee, which directed a back-to-work movement at the strike-beset Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

In a resolution adopted after stormy debate, the conference deplored violence in strikes and advocated equal legal responsibilities for labor unions and employers.

Future activities of the conference will be directed by a five-man committee scheduled to meet Friday, July 23, in New York.

CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS PLANNED BY CHURCH

Board To Raise Money for Debt Payment and Redecorating Work.

Methods of raising money to liquidate the balance of church indebtedness and to redecorate the church, are being studied by a finance committee of the Emanuel Lutheran church as a result of action taken at a recent meeting of the congregation.

The congregation approved action of the vestry to pay off all debts and to redecorate the edifice, by Sept. 8, 1938, if possible.

On that date the twentieth anniversary of the erecting of the present place of worship will be celebrated. Total cost of the church property at the time the church was dedicated on Sept. 8, 1918, was $73,664.92. All but a few thousands of dollars church indebtedness has been cleared.

The redecorating program will include installing new lighting fixtures.

Ivan Graham is chairman of the finance committee in charge of raising the money.

H. L. Albrect was recently elected the church's delegate to the annual convention of the Ohio district of the American Lutheran church Sept. 7-10 at Greenville. O. J. J. Stiffler will be the alternate.

REV. SMITH NAMED PASTOR OF CHURCH

Rev. Music will preach his farewell sermon on Sunday, July 25.

On July 30 a revival campaign will open and will continue through Aug. 8, with Rev. Jack Donovan of Frankfort, Ind., in charge. Rev. Donovan has held several meetings in Marion. Paul Quail of Portsmouth will be in charge of music.

CANVASS PLANNED BY CALVARY CHURCH

Board of Stewards Plan Annual Financial Drive.

The annual "every member canvass" of Calvary Evangelical church will be conducted next week under auspices of the board of stewards.

Members of the board will endeavor to contact all members of the church in making provision for the work of the new conference year which will begin Aug. 1.

On Sunday, July 25, the congregation will give a special "silent offering" for the purpose of closing creditably all of the accounts of the church year now ending.

This offering, Rev. J. W. Heininger, pastor, explained, will be carried out on the basis of the teachings of the Bible, not merely on the basis of the tithe, but "according to ability."

"Calvary church believes that financial offerings are as much a part of sincere worship as praying is, for it is an expression of life that finds its source in right relationships with God," Rev. Heininger said.

Two Hundred Words

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. S. P. RICCOBENE

Pastor, the Covenant Presbyterian Church of America.

TEXT: "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God." John 1:1.

THE church news editor called me and said, "Can you have a sermon ready for the Saturday edition?" I replied in the affirmative. It was further stipulated that there would be space for only two hundred words. "Only two hundred words." What could I say in two hundred words that would be of value to the readers of this page? I suddenly realized as never before that my words were not important. My message is the message of the scriptures. The gospel which means "good news." The scriptures have Christ as their center, its outpreeminent theme. Christ is called "The Word." "The Word of Life. It is of Him the scriptures speak. Christ in His person and work, in His mission and offices, in His first and second advents. He is the glorious topic of the Bible, its sum. Toward Him all its lines converge; in Him all its voices harmonize and blend; in Him its promises and predictions have their fulfillment.

Reader, will you give intelligent heed to the following words from the scriptures?

"For the Word of God is quick, and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

"Being born again; not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which liveth and abideth forever."

"Now ye are clean through the Word which I have spoken unto you."

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners."

"O Word of God Incarnate,
O wisdom from on high,
O Truth unchanged, unchanging,
O light of our dark sky;
We praise Thee for the radiance
that from the hallowed page,
A lantern to our footsteps, shines
on from age to age."

FLAME TRAIL

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Crandon of the Lazy Nine loses her ranch house and barn in a fire, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch and court Kay, she distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Ted Gaynor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings finds them and murders Scrap, using Ted's gun. Ted regains consciousness in an unknown shack where a girl named Marion nurses him through a week of delirious fever. The gun is found and Sheriff Farley calls Ted to the shack, but passes it by.

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT
Best To Stay Hidden

IT was late afternoon before Ted came out of the heavy sleep into which he had slipped after his lapse into unconsciousness.

In the long day that had passed, Marion had had plenty of time to think over the surprising events of the morning.

It was clear that, if Scrap Johnson had been murdered, Ted would be the one to whom suspicion would inevitably point. There were two possibilities — either Ted's shot had not gone wild, as he had supposed, or someone else had come along and murdered the man, framing Ted as the killer.

In any case, the longer Ted could stay hidden away, until he regained strength to fight for himself, the better. No matter how much his mother and sister and the mysterious "Kay" might need him, everyone was better off for the moment if he stayed right where he was.

As for herself, she couldn't leave her hiding place for another 10 days anyway, and she would infinitely rather put in the time nursing Ted back to health and strength, than to be alone with her anxious thoughts of her father.

Resolving to make the position clear to Ted as soon as she could, Marion came and sat beside him, as he roused himself.

Outlining to him his side of the situation, as she saw it, Marion went on to tell him of her own predicament.

"My father is in desperate straits of some sort," she ended, "and under the circumstances I have no choice but to let him work things out in his own way. The one thing I must do, is to wait here for the full time he set. Then, if he hasn't come, I must go back to find him."

"How about the man you're engaged to?" Ted asked.

"He is off on a prospecting trip," Marion answered, "and he won't be back for another month. I hope to Heaven's sake, that my father and I will be safely back in Missoula before that time."

Someone Outside?

Ted slowly pondered this information. "What you say about me is true all right," he answered at last, "I wouldn't be any good to anybody right now, I reckon. I can squash this murder talk easy enough as soon as I'm strong about getting supper ready for him, when he should wake.

Passionate Outburst

As Kay stood at the door of the mine shack and watched the sheriff ride away with his posse, she felt stunned with the sick reaction to the news she had just heard.

One action solution after another flashed through her mind, only to be discarded. It was all a terrifying mystery, and her thoughts kept coming back to the dread certainty that Ted was dead or desperately wounded somewhere.

Dozens of questions that she had asked the sheriff came to her. Why hadn't she found out whether Scrap Johnson's gun had been discharged? Why—a long shuddering breath escaped her.

"There now, honey, don't you take it so hard!" Seth came up behind her, and put a comforting hand on her shoulder. "Looks kind of black for this Gaynor fellow, but after all, he's nothing to us. We can go along on our own, rebuilding, just as well as though he was here."

"I think you are all perfectly heartless!" Kay blazed, whirling about and facing Seth with flashing eyes. "All you think about is how it is going to affect us! You're ready to use his brains and his plan, and then just let him die like a dog somewhere!"

"Why, Kay!" Seth regarded her with open-mouthed amazement. "What's got into you? The sheriff is off this minute searching for him, and—"

"Yes—so that he can accuse him of murder!" Kay broke in passionately. "You're all waiting like a pack of blood hounds to tear him to pieces on no evidence at all! He's not a murderer, I tell you! If he killed Scrap Johnson it was a fair fight, or more likely, with the odds against Ted. He's not a murderer!"

Kay ran down the steps and over to her cabin. Seth let out a long low whistle as he watched her flying figure. Then he slowly shook his head and made his way over to the bunk house.

Kay finds Josh knows a good bit about the shooting, Monday

"I wonder if Kay's heard this murder talk," he said.

She went to the door and cautiously opened it, stepping out a minute on the steps. Then, as she still saw no signs of life, she came in again, pulling the door shut.

"It must have been some animal prowling about," she observed.

There was no answer from Ted, and she smiled as she looked over at him, deeply sunk again into health-giving sleep. Stepping over beside him, she lightly put her hand on his forehead and, still smiling, gazed down at him a moment. Then, she quietly went

Marriage Meddlers

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Insists Lillian Must Tell Reason for Leaving.

LILLIAN LOOKED at Dicky with the blandest stare possible when, addressing her as Sapphira, he told her to "come clean" with her real reason for rushing the four young people away from the first restaurant at which we stopped.

"I haven't the slightest idea of you meaning," she told him stiffly. "You heard me say that I saw something objectionable, something which made it impossible for us to take them in there. Am I to understand that you wish details?"

"That's your story, and you're sticking to it," he gibed. "Please permit me the pleasure of telling you that I don't believe a word of it. You saw nothing around that restaurant which would justify your sanitary soul in rushing away from it. The dump's noted for its fussy cleanliness—make a sort of fetish of it. Nay, nay, little one. You'll have to think up a better one than that."

"Did I say anything about any violation of the sanitary regulations?" she countered. "I simply said that I saw something objectionable about the place. Can I help it if you jump to conclusions?"

Her tone was that of a querulous child, and Dicky was plainly bewildered. But a great light had dawned upon me.

"Was it by any chance, a license plate you didn't expect which upset you?" I asked quietly.

The bland stare which she had bestowed upon Dicky disappeared, and she turned a humorously alive face to me.

"I thought you'd finally get it if I waited long enough," she said.

"Oh! and a couple of ah's," her big husband commented, and Dicky regarded the three of us truculently.

"I suppose you three hick comedians expect to be billed as the 'High Class Comedy Trio'," he growled. "But, let me tell you in the words of the ever lamented Queen Victoria, 'We are not amused'. If you expect me to play up to you in whatever scheme you're concocting, you'll have to let me in on the ground floor. Otherwise, I'm mighty likely to spill the beans without meaning any harm."

Lillian looked at him witheringly.

"You mean you will spill the beans if we don't tell you what's up?" she asked. "All right, Blackmailer Mongoose, here's where you find out things."

Pleased With Music

Dicky spread his hands with an expostulating gesture.

"The names she calls me, yet!" he said resignedly, "und I only vants to know 'tings."

"Hold it!" Harry Underwood warned. "The kids are coming back."

We watched them with pleased approval as Hank and Bill, with manifest pride in their office, led the girls back to our table.

They were justified in their pride, I told myself, as I watched the lovely, animated faces of the two girls. And I gave myself a pat on the back for the scheme I had concocted for giving two or three days of idyllic pleasure to the two school boys who so admired Marion and Carolyn.

"This sure is the place!" Hank said with a man-of-the-world air as he pulled out Carolyn's chair.

"Good music, isn't it?" Lillian queried.

"Oh marvelous!" Carolyn gurgled. "And that divine cellist would simply tear your heart out with his low notes. And am I the lady with the allure! He was giving me the lingering wish—I—knew—you—look every time we passed him. Hank noticed it, didn't you, Darling?"

Just Things

Collectors.

MOST folks are blessed or have the ill luck (which ever way you care to put it) in having a yen to devote their spare moments to some particular bit of self-expression or garnering some special item such as having the most flowers in the garden, or pointing with pride to a flock of autographs. We haven't, and we didn't think so much about it until someone intimated in a polite way, that, while there really was nothing amiss about folks who didn't, only most folks did have a "hobby." We do feel a bit better about it now since we queried a fellow workman on the topic and found that he failed to register on this particular human trait, also. We agree, we're a good teammate for an Egyptian mummy when it comes to making conversation along the line of collecting elephants, rocks, seashells or the like, but we do believe we make a good listener, and a genuinely interested one, too, but we just can't think of a thing we'd like to collect. Old glass would be elegant and colorful, dolls would be interesting, coins must give one a swell feeling of wealth and affluence, and there's ever so many things other that one might build from. Speaking of collectors, we met up with an off-the-beaten path one recently. She surprised everyone by asking her hostess at a bridge party if she might have the jokers in the decks of cards. Yes, she was making a collection, and from a mental picture, they would be attractive.

Odds.

THIS department is not viewing the world at large with any too friendly mien these days, and there's a reason. Imagine trying to train down to a point of getting the old chassis into a "minerva" bathing suit so that when you meet the relatives on vacation it'll not be the same old tune, "well, well, I see you still can eat," or something equally as touching, with a flock of delicious recipes of last words in good things to eat, pouring into one's lap. Yes, it's the third annual hot weather menu contest going right to town, and the recipes are most alluring. We're not putting anything out, of course that wouldn't be fair, the only thing we can say is that they're delicious, and whatever else the sponsors find out, here's one item that's in the bag right now. The women of Marion and vicinity do know what's good to cook and how to prepare it. There's money in them there recipes, so why not get in?

Words.

NOT that we are given to spring ing funny words, but here is one that we never heard of, much less used, "hoddy doddy." Not that it is so elegant, and if you say it you'd better be good on the run, for it's a fighting word. Here are some of the things it means: Simpleton, tomfool, nizy, zany, trifler, babbler, oaf, lout, loon lowt, dullard, doodle, gowk, crone well, that's about enough isn't it?

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore.—When Louis G. Hoagland drove up in front of his home, he had to look twice to see if he was wrong. In his absence, a house painter had painted the home—a big mistake—because of the house he had been commissioned to do was in a different neighborhood.

CITIZENS GROUPS AIR STRIKE VIEWS

By The Associated Press

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 17—A national conference of Citizens Committees charged yesterday that "certain public officials in high places" had refused to protect American citizens in their right to work.

Two hundred ministers, college professors and business men from 20 communities at the convention pledged themselves to "restore and protect those constitutional rights that have been taken from citizens by unworthy officials."

The delegates met at the call of the Johnstown Citizens Committee, which directed a back-to-work movement at the strike-beset Cambria works of the Bethlehem Steel corporation.

In a resolution adopted after stormy debate, the conference deplored violence in strikes and advocated equal legal responsibilities for labor unions and employers.

Future activities of the conference will be directed by a five-man committee scheduled to meet Friday, July 23, in New York.

Moral Victory, Maybe.

That budget fight in the assembly between senate "hatchet men" and House "spare that tree" men, it appears now, turned out more like a draw than a victory for the expense cutters. Experts say the "hatchet men's" windup was more furious than their bite.

They never claimed they were going to save more than $5,500,000, but when it was all over it seems they actually save no more than the equivalent of a couple 12 cylinder limousines.

This needs explanation, which is provided as follows.

Though expenses weren't cut much, they were placed under better control. Some of the open invitations to monkey business in the budget system were removed.

Besides expenses, the "hatchet men" cut deeply into the tender sensibilities of the administration by ordering investigations of the highway, liquor and civil service departments. This is expected to throw a scare into those who have been abusing these politically fruitful departments.

Last, but not least, the move to impose more taxes on Ohio was blocked. This must be called a victory for taxpayers, even if it's only a moral victory. It has been a long time since taxpayers won even that much in the Buckeye state, some times called, facetiously, the "Eye the Buck" state.

No Doubting Thomas.

Norman Thomas, the Socialist, has a reputation for ringing the bell when he makes a speech. In fact, it seems some times he is more lecturer than politician.

When Mr. Thomas toured the picket lines in Canton early Wednesday morning—as a Socialist—he had a chance to make a speech. In his capacity as a lecturer, he delivered some excellent advice. He said, "Keep cool and refrain as much as is humanly possible from anything which will breed fascist reaction...."

What is fascist reaction? It's the reaction which follows any breakdown of order threatening the welfare of the general public. To combat disorder, extreme measures are proposed and adopted. If pursued to an extreme, they bring the country to dictatorship.

Italy and Germany experienced fascist reactions, following periods of disorder resulting from widespread labor unrest. Mr. Thomas knows that. If American labor leaders don't know it, they had better find out.

The general public has nothing to gain from fascism. Labor, organized and unorganized, has nothing to gain from it. No one has anything to gain from it, except the political crowd which seizes power, and capitalists, who for a time, may succeed in buying favor with the politicians. In the end, everybody loses, including even the politicians, because in the long run the violence they have loosed turns against them, too.

It isn't organized labor which threatens the peace and welfare of the United States. It is the excesses which so often accompany undisciplined labor movements, inviting retaliation, breeding hatred and laying the groundwork for fascism. The general public is as anxious to avert danger from one side as from the other, a situation which politicians and labor leaders slowly are beginning to understand.

Another One.

Three more Russian aviators have roared over the top of the earth from Moscow to land on the Pacific coast of the United States.

They have set a new record for non-stop distance flying, approximately 6,600 miles in about 60 hours. The flight, as was the previous one that ended in the state of Washington, is a demonstration of excellent equipment and superb flying.

The apparent purpose is to exhibit Russia's newly acquired skill in flight. It is difficult to believe there is any commercial motive because the long hop from Moscow to the Pacific coast via the Arctic circle is too strongly suggestive of stunt flying.

Yet, common sense also suggests that behind the apparent purpose there must be some stronger reason for catapulting planes and men over the top of the earth than to give them a ride for exhibition purposes. A hint as to what it may be can be found in the fact that Russia now is identified directly with successful long distance flying, which would be a factor of great consequence in any war which the Soviet Union might fight either in or on the borders of its vast territory.

Roosevelt Splits The Party

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1937, by The Marion Star

WASHINGTON, July 17—President Roosevelt has probably split the Democratic party beyond repair. Out of the split may come a factional fight as bitter as that which broke the Republican party asunder. Then the realignment of parties long expected can materialize.

For the moment, however, the implications of what the President has just done in dictating to congress that it must obey "the master" is not so much political as non-political. Members of both the President's faction and the opposition within his own party are saying that Mr. Roosevelt has committed a blunder of far-reaching proportions and that he has taken a leap into the dark.

The letter to Senator Barkley is in many respects amazing. First, it is clumsily written, as if dashed off in anger or irritation, and lacks coherence or persuasiveness. It is in style wholly unlike the smooth flowing sentences of Mr. Roosevelt's carefully prepared radio addresses.

Next, the letter is in just about as bad taste as a President of the United States could possibly display. When he says that advantage is being taken of the mourning period by opposition senators, it is tantamount to a declaration that he thinks, when a group of senators use bad taste, he is justified in following their lead. The philosophy that two wrongs never make a right is as vital today as it ever was.

But what are the facts? Who really violated the spirit of the mourning period occasioned by the death of Senator Robinson? Within a few hours after the news was flashed throughout the capitol that the majority leader was dead, the governor of Indiana, Clifford Townsend, upset the applecart. He came out of the White House and uttered a death sentence to the political career of Senator Van Nuys of Indiana, Democrat, who has been opposing the President's bill to destroy the independence of the supreme court. The Indiana governor told the correspondents that the Democratic organization in his state wouldn't renominate Mr Van Nuys. This was like a declaration of war on Capitol Hill. Having been said on the doorsteps of the White House, the utterance was taken to mean that the White House had begun its campaign of revenge and that a candidate would be entered in the Democratic primaries with White House support in order to defeat Mr. Van Nuys.

There is only one answer to such a challenge and that is to fight. If the Democrats in Indiana who believe in constitutional government happen to be outnumbered at the primaries next year by voters who call themselves Democrats but who favor one-man government of the fascist type, then the Republicans of Indiana on the same day will be able to checkmate such tactics by giving their party nomination to Mr Van Nuys so that he will be on the ballot anyway and so that the constitutional Democrats plus the Republicans can return him to the United States senate.

The situation has gone far beyond party lines. There may be men in Indiana ambitious for the Republican nomination for senator, but with the eyes of the nation on the Hoosier state it is doubtful if any man's ambition should be allowed to stand in the way of a popular union of voters against White House dictation to the people in their own party primaries.

The principle of home rule and self government will be at stake. What may happen in the Indiana primaries also may happen elsewhere. The President wants Senator Barkley to become majority leader. Senator Byrnes of South Carolina, one of the ablest of the senators, says he doesn't want the leadership "at this time," which in itself is significant. It may mean that he thinks a leader's task in trying to reconcile the opposing factions is hopeless. Certainly the veteran Pat Harrison might help Mr. Roosevelt out of a hole, but he, too, is reported reluctant to undertake the job.

If Senator Harrison does become leader, he might possibly succeed in carrying on the truce which Senator Robinson managed with difficulty but nevertheless with some degree of effectiveness. He had hoped to limit the cleavage in the party to the court fight alone.

But with Mr Barkley chosen leader, the battle will be on without quarter. The determination of the group who oppose the President's effort to control the supreme court is so great that they will gain converts if the fight is prolonged.

Developments are coming rapidly. The President has been aware of the fact that his lines have been slipping and his letter to Mr. Barkley was a desperate effort to hold his forces intact during the mourning period. He found an excuse to issue the letter by charging that his opponents were violating the mourning truce, but the reason was regarded as so transparent on Capitol Hill as to be accepted as a sign of weakness.

At the moment it looks as if a resolution to adjourn congress by August 1st would have the best chance of passage by both houses. This would mean that the court bill would be laid aside. It would stay on the calendar until next January unless refered back to committee for further consideration. There are more votes available in the senate for an adjournment resolution than for a motion to send the court bill back to committee. The adjournment resolution is expected to originate in the house.

The President would look with equanimity on the adjournment idea. He will probably say this is a challenge by congress to his leadership and he would then carry the issue to the country. We may yet see between now and January a situation not unlike a political campaign with organizations at work, mass meetings and all other agencies of public opinion operating at campaign momentum.

What It Means:

Senatorial Filibuster—1937 Style

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
Associated Press Writer

You've heard a great deal about a senate filibuster in connection with the supreme court bill. In this week's "What It Means" story the present "watered substitute" for a bill-killing talkathon is compared with the Real McCoy of the old days.

WASHINGTON, July 17.—People who really know their filibusters are turning up their noses and walking out on the current show in the United States senate chamber.

In fact, a veteran filibuster fan will tell you Senator Burton K. Wheeler and his 1937 model oppositionists are merely offering a watered substitute for the real thing.

The kind of gallery-ite who'd wait years to sit through an endurance speech is looking down his nose for two reasons:

No. 1: You can't have a filibuster so long as legitimate debate proceeds. Since senators actually want to discuss the President's bill to doctor the supreme court, there just isn't a filibuster as yet. So far, it is regular, legal debate. Besides, the Wheeler boys have around 40 senators in their ranks. Then where's your endurance contest? And without an endurance contest, a dyed-in-the-wool-fan will tell you there's no excitement in a filibuster.

Reason No. 2: The senate chamber is air-conditioned and has been so for six years. In the "good old days" Washington was a place to dread in the summer time. A filibuster in June or July meant actual physical and mental torture. But nowadays, 12 hours of filibustering is just so much comfortable gabbing.

Milk-Sipping Champions.

Now there was a time when filibustering was more exciting than a six day bike race. For instance, take a filibusterer's diet. You could always mark a champion because he usually was a milk sipper. The milk sippers had the edge over tea drinkers. The record-holding Fighting Bob LaFollette was a milk sipper. During his continuous 18-hour stretch in May, 1908, he relied on milk, varied occasionally with a raw egg. His single dessert was a sandwich.

Reed Smoot of Utah preferred the milk diet, too. He made a 15-hour stand in January, 1913, with the aid of a few glasses of the teetotaler's delight. He may have imbibed too much for downright fine training, but his technique wasn't bad.

To be sure, a few tea drinkers have shown remarkable endurance. Their success was attributed however, to their normal physical stamina rather than diet. For instance, strapping big William V. Allen back in 1893 covered 16 hours on a single cup of tea.

Chair Leaners.

Conserving energy is quite a problem. The chair-leaning technique was a favorite. It's the business of draping yourself against a chair arm in such a way as to avoid yielding the floor. A chair leaner has got to watch out for fear some body will make a point he is not standing squarely on his feet, and therefore has lost the floor. La Follette was exceptionally good at it. Smoot got into trouble.

In the midst of the Utah senator's talkathon, for instance, an opponent charged he had lost the floor because he was leaning on a chair. Smoot denied he was anywhere near a chair, and added:

"That's another attempt to use brutal force to keep a senator from exercising his right to speak!" He held the floor.

Monotone Speakers.

The monotone technique is effective. The canny Smoot never deviated from a low, even mumble the galleries could hardly catch, and thereby saved his voice. La Follette also spoke low while filibustering, except when he wanted to wake up his sleeping opponents and annoy them. In that event he would emit a peculiarly grating roar, then subside to his sing-song filibustering voice.

That trick of voice saving was one the ubiquitous Huey Long missed when he held the floor for 15 and a half hours in 1935. He couldn't speak above a whisper after it was over.

When you get right down to it, a filibuster hasn't much excuse for existing under our legislative procedure, and it is becoming less and less effective as the average age of senators drops. It's based on the custom that a man must rise to address the chair, and remain standing while speaking during debate.

So a real filibusterer girds himself with a time-worn custom and props himself up as long as he can for the single purpose of delaying a vote on a proposition he doesn't like. If he has help—as Senator Wheeler most certainly has in the court bill filibuster—he can be spelled by yielding to assistants.

Still "Same Day."

One handicap for the filibusterer is that one man may speak only twice on one bill or one amendment to a bill in a single legislative day. That's why the late Senator Joe T. Robinson, who was trying to break the filibuster "recessed" the senate at the end of each calendar day. If he had permitted the senate to "adjourn," he would have created a new legislative day. As matters were, the bill and each proffered amendment were going through debate for days on end while only one technical legislative day was elapsing. It's sort of like stopping the clock.

But with some 40 filibuster-minded senators on hand in an air-conditioned chamber the current show doesn't impress the serious minded filibuster expert. They say a real, hairy-chested endurance king of the old days should be turning over in his grave at such a procedure as the galleries have been witnessing.

Go Over It Slowly.

The wriggling of the queens and the soiled jokes of the comics were no more depressing to a balanced mind than the strange antics of the burlesque business in New York.

All the shows were closed down because, suddenly, the kind of entertainment they offered became contrary to public policy. Now they have all opened up again, after paying good stiff fines to renew their licenses for short probationary periods.

They're not burlesque any more—same places, same dancers, same comics and probably the same jokes, but not burlesque. They're variety revues, instead, with more clothes and less suggestiveness.

A variety revue is, of course, vaudeville. But vaudeville's dead. So burlesque, which now is vaudeville, must be dead.

Go over it slowly. It doesn't make sense. That's what burlesque operators probably think, too.

Another Legend of Seas Probable

UNLESS Amelia Earhart and Fred Noonan are found, or unless wreckage is found which will furnish a clue to their fate, there probably will grow up another of those legends about missing persons—a legend insurely built on the supposition that Miss Earhart and Noonan may still be alive.

There is nothing to support such a legend in this case, except hope. The reefs which dot the south seas cannot support human life, except for a short time. Samuel W. King, congressional delegate from Hawaii, who has aided the navy officers in the area where the Earhart search is going on, recently gave his views in an interview.

The length of time human life might be maintained, he said, would depend on the endurance of the person. He did not think thirst would be a major factor, incidentally, because he believes water could be obtained by digging a hole in the sand. The water would be brackish, but it would quench thirst.

A stranded person could find food sufficient to sustain him for a time—crabs and fish. Some of the larger reefs are covered with shrubs and weeds, which could be cut and used to build a fire.

Great doubt exists, Mr. King points out, about the location of the reefs. He described Winslow reef, which has figured in search news, as an example.

Reported in 1851

This reef, supposedly south of Baker Island—which is approximately 56 miles south of Howland Island a projected landing point for the aviators—was first reported by a schooner master, Capt. Winslow, in 1851.

Since then there has been much speculation on whether Capt. Winslow actually saw a reef or whether he just thought he did while his vessel was sliding through a dreaming south sea. Since then—in 1922, '28 and '32—two British ships and one American have crossed the point Winslow indicated, but without encountering a reef.

The charts of the sea list the reef with an appended "P. D.," position doubtful. No such reported reef is recognized as existing until it is officially checked.

King would not speculate on the whereabouts of the missing aviators, because he did not want to venture opinions that might confuse the search. He said he would speak only of the characteristics of the islands, the reefs and the conditions of climate and sea as he found them in 1924 when he sat on the bridge of the U. S. S. Whippowill as it rounded the Ice of Howland Island.

Desolate Spot

He was commanding a scientific exploration into the down-under areas about Howland. He saw the island of a morning a flat, unappealing piece of land—2½ miles long north and south and a half mile wide projecting 18 to 20 feet above the sea. He remembers the sea pounded one of its sides like a booming gun.

His field glasses swept the desolation, to find no human object.

He swung the Whippowill to a protected side, and even there the currents were sweeping. His blue jackets had no difficulty getting ashore.

There was nothing of appeal in sight. Years before commercial companies had men on the island, but those were gone, and they had left little to remind of their once dismal occupations. King and his company of scientists found the weather good; they found the brackish water, the pigweed and grass.

Torrid Weather

They checked the weather, especially. King recalls it as "hot as ——," but there was always a refreshing breeze that billowed the stump scrub grass.

It storms came they were mild and, rain clouds brought rain. "There is no fun of climate would be in their favor," he thought.

He pointed out that Howland is 1,650 miles southwest of Honolulu, and appears to have been first reported by Capt. George E. Netcher, of New Bedford, and as being located on Sept. 9, 1842. He thinks the general characteristics of Howland essentially the same as of so of other south seas pin dots.

How Some Writers Write

BY O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 17—The longer one works in this—and doubtless every other trade—the more one seeks the easiest way. Mark Twain found, after many years of bumping over a desk, that he could write longer and much better relaxing in the comforts of a well-pillowed four poster.

Most creative folk think best reclining. Addison's better essays and gravid thoughts came when, from a sleeping porch chaise lounge, at night he could glance from the writing pad to the scatter of stars. Somerset Maugham wrote "Rain" stretched on a deck chair in the tropics one night.

I believe semi tropical countries are most ideal for writing. Such as Florida and California. Very little fine literature comes out of the Arctic zones. Literature flowers best in sunshine. The great poets have been most inspired in their gardens or by the seaside.

Some day I should like to find a hammock with Jacaranda trees in constant light lavender bloom like so many powder puffs brushing the heavens. Or flaming poinciana lighting the sky against a background of mountainside bristling with those feather dusters of the gods—the valiant pines. How I go on!

But as a makeshift for the ideal I am scribbling this while swaying gently in a hammock near peaceful Nashua, N. H. There does not happen to be much of an inspiring view and mosquitoes at times are particularly bold. But it is moonlight and inside the older folk are playing bridge, the youngsters dancing to a phonograph.

At dinner by candle glow tonight there was one of those overbearing males that seem to have become a part of New York in the past few years. He is at every gathering, brash, badmannered and cocksure. Disraeli once described such a poltroon as "a sophisticated rhetorician, inebriated with the exuberance of his own verbosity and gifted with an equivocal imagination that can at all times command an interminable and inconsistent series of arguments to maligh his opponents and to glorify himself." All of us know at least one—perhaps several.

There was dinner talk, too, that all the current dictators are teetotalers. And some of the more liberal minded appeared to think that was an argument against strict temperance. The fact is, most dictators drank more or less until they ascended to absolute rule. Then they realized they must watch their step and the slightest slip might mean the boot or the firing squad. The befuddlement of wine and the morning hangover do not go with grinding the will and freedom of the people into the dust, if you don't mind my mounting the soap box a moment.

I have been trying to lash myself into an urge to go to Europe this summer, but I'm still apathetic, as is my wife. I have not seen Paris for nearly three years, and even then it had begun to droop, and today those who know it well say the gloom can be cut with a dull knife. The familiar American haunts are deserted, the Champs Elysees is cluttered with five and tens and cafeterias. The once gay boulevards now bump to pile chairs on the tables at 10 o'clock and at midnight Montmartre calls it a day and yanks down the corrugated shutters. Berlin is likewise lifeless at night and London, following the example of the new King, is living quietly. New York thus has become the most exciting city in the world. New cafes, new night clubs, new plays. At least so such gadabouts as Louis Sobol tell us.

All, I am sure, have noted an inclination among friends and acquaintances who used to be abustle with energy to go places and do things, to merely drift. There seems a general lassitude, a constant polite effort to stifle a universal yawn. An attitude that nothing much matters. It might be the depleting aftermaths of a drawn-out depression, a natural let down that means nothing. Or it may mean something portentious. At times to me it has grown a bit frightening—like the growing thunder of the doom drums that attain such crescendo in Ravel's Bolero. Out of it one thing is certain. The desire of the majority to shun fuss and fashions and get back to rain barrel simplicities. The trailer is indeed the symbol of the era.

YOUTH'S CLEANSING. Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word. — Psalms 119:9.

It's Hardly the Same Old Bill

New Wage, Hour Plan More Limited.

WASHINGTON, July 17—Smashing of the power-grasping price-wage-hour bill to permit it to accept it without feeling it sold both labor and industry the risen.

The old bill was a stem-winder. It missed hardly any [illegible] industry or labor. The [illegible] in his message urging [illegible] legislation said he wanted to [illegible] a break to the lower one-[illegible] the population. The labor standards board provided by [illegible] had power under the old measure not only to help out the lower one-third, but to step into the affairs of some of the upper crust of labor, those getting up to $1 an hour.

But even more sweeping was the power the board could have exercised over industry. By its authority to fix a different wage [illegible] one part of the country from that in another, it could have given [illegible] off enterprises it felt for one reason or another were "uneconomic" or unsuitable to some [illegible] planning" scheme. Those were the possibilities of dictatorial [illegible] daggery in the old bill.

Not only did industry [illegible] the leaders of labor saw [illegible] fields invaded, saw the danger of a federal board taking over the business of negotiating wage and hour terms virtually independent of labor organizations.

Compromise

So much disturbance developed over the bill that the senate labor committee recognized that if anything were to be undertaken this year, modifications were necessary. Senator Thomas of Utah was credited with suggesting the time [illegible] the compromise that found its way into the new bill.

He pointed out that during the legislation was based on the sweeping scope of its jurisdiction. The solution, then, was to reduce the jurisdiction. The next step [illegible] that, and by that step might [illegible] though without removing some of the abhorrent features of the bill.

In the first place the President's suggestion for benefiting the [illegible] one-third was heeded. Instead of reaching into the 55-cent bracket, the labor standards board now has jurisdiction only among [illegible] earning less than 40 cents an hour and working more than 40 hours a week. Before, only executive, professionals and [illegible] workers were exempt. The new measure exempts those and [illegible] seamen, fish-handlers, railroad employes subject to rail wage-hour legislation, and employes in [illegible] retail enterprises.

Safeguard.

The board still has power to make different wage levels in [illegible] parts of the country, but since it is limited to the dead-line below 40 cents an hour it can't touch much of anything in the way of big industry except cotton textiles.

Moreover, previously it could establish wage-hour levels which did not "unreasonably curtail opportunities for employment" that a struggling plant could be crowded down within the scope of "reasonably." The new bill simply provides that wage and hour levels may be pushed as nearly as economically feasible to the 40 cent-40 hour bracket provided the action will not curtail opportunities for employment.

Now if somebody will stop the court filibuster, the bill may pass.

Glancing Backward

GOVERNOR LUCAS STORY

Gov Robert Lucas was a man who showed force of character but in his earlier days he was once accused by his opponents with showing the white feather Lucas was a Pike county man at the time when the Indians were still troublesome A party of them once invaded the district and drove off a number of horses of the settlers

Lucas was placed in charge of a party of men to pursue the Indians, but the Indians moved fast and led the pursuers a long distance from home.

For this reason Lucas ordered the band to return to their homes, and he was accused by one of the party a Major Munn of cowardice This charge almost resulted in a duel

Chemist Guards Flour Products of Marion Milling Co.

Silk Floss Flour Quality Guarded Here

Laboratory Control of Mill Assures High Standard and Uniform Quality

The chemical laboratory maintained by the Marion Milling Co on North Prospect street soon will round out a fifty year of operation here The laboratory was established hardly after the mill was taken over by its present owners

In the early years the laboratory's duties consisted mainly of checking the product of the mill From a small beginning it gradually has been worked into a position where it is in constant control of all milling operations Thus the load of wheet can be brought to the mill for test by a farmer who has the grain being tested to determine its flour making quality

As the wheat is brought it is binned according to quality The result is that when milling time arrives the millers are able to properly blend the grain to turn out the highest quality of the various types of flour the mill produces

But the work of the chemist does not end here As the flour is milled the chemist keeps a constant check on the product to be sure that it is of uniform quality and high standard

This is what science has done for the milling industry And all this is to make certain that when a housewife in her kitchen mixes batter for a party cake or biscuit dough for the family dinner table the result will be satisfactory

The laboratory equipment at the mill is complete and the most modern obtainable for the purpose De Kotski balanced scales are used to weigh the minute particles of ash remaining after a sample of flour has been burned in an electric furnace In one corner of the laboratory are rows of large test tubes for testing protein contents of the flour That is the scientific side of the laboratory

There is another side however to the work of the chemist It doesn't require a technical knowledge of chemistry but is just as important from the standpoint of the housewife who eventually uses the flour It is the baking test

Harold W McGhee who is in charge of the laboratory not only is a trained chemist but he is an experienced baker as well After he has made innumerable chemical tests he turns to the test that probably has the most popular appeal to the housewife who will eventually use the flour the baking test In this his aim is to find out exactly how the various flours and flour preparations will act in the consumer's oven And after he has determined that and not until then will he give his approval to each batch of flour as it is prepared in the mill

Recently a new piece of equipment has been added to the laboratory equipment It is a doughnut machine for baking doughnuts from the mills prepared doughnut flour The machine is entirely automatic from controlling the temperature of the frying fat to cutting turning and lifting the doughnuts In fact the only thing the chemist has to do is prepare the batter and place it in the hopper The doughnut sold under the name Silk Floss is put up in packages for home and commercial uses

Silk Floss and Cloverleaf are the two popular brands of flour and prepared flours turned out by the Marion mill The latter is a soft winter wheat flour

In the prepared flours the Silk Floss doughnut pancake and biscuit flour are growing steadily in popularity with housewives With all the ingredients added the housewife has only to mix with water and bake

With the harvest season now in full swing this is a busy season at the Marion mill and especially in the laboratory In fact work has increased to such an extent that an assistant chemist has been added He is Francis Phillips of Marion

Wiant's Book Store Takes On New Line of Adding Machines and Registers

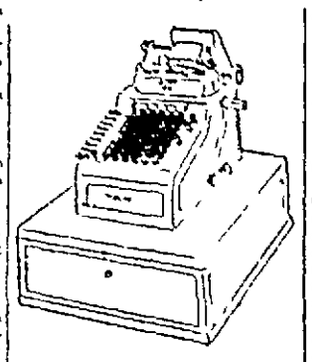
Wiant's Book store at 120 South Main street has been named dealers here for the R C Allen line of adding machines cash registers and mechanical calculators

To serve the needs of modern business the Allen Calculators Inc of New York City has designed four specialized lines of machines each designed to perform a specific function and serve a definite requirement The machines are heavy duty adding machines up to 13 columns capacity for Banks and general accounting work portables hand operated for departmental use branch offices and small business calculating machines for multiplication and division in offices and factories and cash register units for retailers combining the functions of both cash register and adding machine in one unit

Exclusive Features

Visible dials and visible printing are two of the exclusive features of the Allen line of adding machines They permit a wide variety of arrangements for handling special work such as ton the large capacity machines) adding two or three columns simultaneously and with mouth and late keys for the preparation of statements The step-up key aid makes for extremely fast short cut operation when depressing keys and motor bar simultaneously

The Allen line features a number of different models of adding machines One large capacity portable model for general office and accounting work is capable of direct subtraction The operator needs only to press his thumb and



Above is a photograph of the combination R C Allen adding machine and cash register The agencies for this line of equipment recently has been granted Wiant's Book Store on South Main street

subtraction is as fast as additions

On all Allen machines the operator is protected against errors because of a 100 per cent visible operation When an item is entered he sees it and subtractively checks his entry by the depressed keys A running total is continuously in view on the large well located visible dials The tape is in the operator's direct line of vision and he checks his tape faster because the first and final figures print in red

The machines are equipped with a double automatic clear signal and the first figure in red shows an arrow this proving the machine was clear Subtracted items are indicated by a minus sign The machines have every operating convenience repeat key non print non add correction total and sub total A non leak oil governor provides a smooth easy handle pull which speeds operation if the hand operated models

Cash Registers

All Allen cash registering machines come complete with the simple line-a-day business analysis accounting system No experience required in their operation The system shows daily sales by departments sales by clerks purchases paid out items charge sales money received on account cash in bank bills payable bills receivable insurance cost of goods tax details and permits taking off a profit and loss or financial statement at any time

Another model plus this accounting system gives retailers all needed information about the business provides a complete cash register cash drawer and adding machine Everything complete at an amazingly low price—within the reach of the smallest store keeper

The electric 10-key Allen calculator with universal motor occupies less than the space of a letterhead On divide work it is so nearly automatic that the operator does not have to look at the machine once the problem is set up Automatic electric retaining of the setting up register when used for additions and subtraction

Only 10 keys of standard size under the finger tips of one hand permit fast touch system operation

Because of the simplified keyboard arrangement, [illegible] ate the machine after a few moments instruction

Its dials show "true figures" (no complements) each factor of every problem is visible in a straight line [illegible]

NEW DEPARTMENT HEAD APPOINTED

Officials of Wiant's book store today announced the appointment of J A Wiggins formerly of Columbus as manager of sales and service for the stores line of typewriters adding machines cash registers and calculators Mr Wiggins has had 25 years experience in this line of work For 20 years he was with a company manufacturing a well known make of adding machine In addition to the R C Allen line of mechanical office equipment Wiant's store handles Royal portable and standard typewriters

Caulkins' Station Offers New Type Highway Map

Motorists who are planning trips to Ohio beauty spots or points of interest in other nearby states will find a big aid in arranging their schedules and routes by obtaining one of the new highway bulletins and road maps from the Max Caulkins Hi-Speed service station at East Church and High streets

One of the attractive features of the new maps is that they are arranged in sections—each section showing routes in much greater detail than is ordinarily found in single maps

In addition to highway routes the maps contain a large amount of information regarding points of interest in the various states

But providing a road map is not the only valuable service the Caulkins Hi Speed station can provide motorists The well equipped station handling high grade products can put the motorist's car in the proper condition to give many vacation miles of trouble free motoring

Using the moto-away system of lubrication the station attendants will take all the squeaks out of a car Since the lubricants are applied under actual road conditions the motorist can be sure that when he starts on his trip that all wearing parts of his machine have been supplied with the proper lubricant

30 FIREMEN HURT IN OIL TANK BLASTS

Atlantic City Gasoline Storage Explosions Cause Damage Estimated at $100,000.

By The Associated Press

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 17—Half a dozen rusty steel tanks, warped and split open from a series of explosions at the Pure Oil Co.'s storage plant, yawned on Virginia avenue today as 30 scorched and bruised firemen lay bandaged in hospital beds.

Fireman Clifford Hogan, 37, caught in the first big belch of flaming gasoline, lay under an oxygen tent, his arms, neck, back and shoulders badly burned. Fireman Larry Walsh was in the next room, his entire body a red, pulpy mass.

Fifty-five-year-old Deputy Chief Rex Farley had to lie on his stomach, for his back was a big patch of blisters. Farley's coat was all but burned off his back, but for two more hours he kept in the fight to extinguish the inferno of 50,000 gallons of blazing oil yesterday.

The way 200 firemen swarmed around the huge gasoline tanks which everybody knew might blow up any minute brought cries of admiration from throngs of spectators who stood at safe distances.

Seven policemen also wore bandages, and an untold number of spectators. Miss Nellie McGurran, head of the City hospital, calculated more than 170 persons were treated for injuries. Fire Chief Joseph Leeds estimated the property damage at $80,000 to $100,000.

Most of the injured spectators were hurt in stampedes that followed two mighty explosions. First a 10,000-gallon tank turned Virginia avenue into a river of fire. Later another 10,000-gallon tank shot its flaming contents hundreds of feet into the air. Scores of persons were trampled on in the big rush to get away. Everybody expected the burning pillar of gasoline to fall in a streak across the city, but luckily it burned out too quickly for that.

The stampede of humanity extended for almost a mile in one direction. At least three motorists drove their cars up on sidewalks during the excitement, and many jumped out of their vehicles and ran for shelter.

CITIZENS SUPPORT OUSTED TEACHER

Saugus School Committee To Consider Reinstatement.

By The Associated Press

SAUGUS, Mass., July 17—This town's school committee today faced another special meeting to consider what Chairman George McCarrier called "a story with a mystery"—the dismissal of a pretty, blonde high school teacher.

Swept by an endorsement of attractive 26-year-old Isabelle Hallin at a public meeting last night, McCarrier asserted he would call the committee into another session to consider her reinstatement.

Earlier this week the board rejected a motion to place Miss Hallin on permanent tenure by a 3 to 2 vote and by the same margin denied her a public hearing.

More than 300 persons who crowded into town hall heard the attractive young teacher challenge "any one in town" to meet her "face to face" and prove "malicious rumors" she claimed led to the committee's refusal to reappoint her.

Town Auditor Edward Gibbs, who presided, appointed a committee of five to present a petition to the school committee urging Miss Hallin's reinstatement.

COLUMBUS, KENTON CARS IN COLLISION

Injured Man In Hospital at Bucyrus After Crash on Route 4.

William Roberts, 24, of Columbus is in the Bucyrus city hospital this morning suffering head lacerations as the result of a two-car sideswipe collision about 11:30 last night on route 4, two miles north of the Marion-Crawford county line, according to a report of state highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station. Three Kenton youths, occupants of the other car which figured in the accident, were uninjured.

Roberts was northbound and his automobile struck a southbound car driven by William Lentz, 18, of Kenton. Roberts' automobile was demolished and damaged to the Lentz car was estimated at $200 by highway patrolmen. Roberts was driving alone and Lentz was accompanied by LeRoy Keel, 20, and Fred Fink, 20, both of Kenton.

Roberts was taken to the hospital by a passing motorist. His car was towed to Kibler's garage in Bucyrus and Lentz's car was brought here by a wrecker from the McDaniel Motor Co.

NORTH CHINA CRISIS NEARING A CLIMAX

Meeting of Troops May Lead to Formal Declaration of War.

By The Associated Press

The crisis in North China drew today toward the climax that may determine whether there will be formally declared war between Japan and China.

Troops of China's national government at Nanking, crack divisions of the fighting machine built by Premier-Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, were reported reliably to have reached Hopeh province in North China.

Japanese troops from Manchoukuo and those regularly garrisoned in North China already were in the field. Others were en route from the Japanese mainland.

A meeting of the two armies, foreign observers believed, might create a situation so disastrous that war would result.

Fighting thus far in the area around Peiping has been between Japanese troops and local North China soldiers.

Japan wants to settle the dispute locally and has been conducting negotiations with military leaders and officials of Hopeh province.

Nanking avows the national government will recognize no local agreement, contending the issue is national. Chinese believe Japan seeks to detach Hopeh and Chahar provinces from China proper, as Manchoukuo was detached in 1931-33.

SPAIN ROUNDS OUT YEAR OF CIVIL WAR

government, strongly Socialist with Communists and Syndicalists taking a hand. France, under then Premier Leon Blum, appeared divided but with a dangerously armed Germany across the Rhine, France chose to be neutral.

Italy and Germany early recognized the Franco government, and their men and munitions have aided the insurgents.

Not even the non-intervention committee pretends the outside nations have been neutral. The war in Spain is accepted by all as partly a "foreign" war with much aid to both sides coming in and international issues at stake.

"Modern Warfare" Test

Spain to military experts is a proving ground for modern warfare, but the results have been disappointing. The quick sweep of mechanized armies, the supposedly invincible destructiveness of war from the air and the power of big guns have been disappointments. Sometimes aviation has been successful and sometimes not. The full year of war without victory tells the story.

Many reasons made the world watch.

Fascist Italy and Nazi Germany said they wanted no Communist state in Spain. They asserted the Socialism of the Madrid faction would turn to Communism if Madrid won.

France and Russia didn't want another Fascist state in Europe. Socialist France saw danger of Fascism oozing across the border from Spain if Franco won.

Germany and Italy twice withdrew from the naval patrol around Spain because Spanish government aircraft bombed their warships.

The naval patrol has failed. Now Great Britain's new plan is to put observers on ships, in ports and along borders to report whether men and munitions are going to the warring factions.

Franco abolished the international control along the Spanish border without waiting to see the new plan. Again there is pressure by many of the French Socialist-Communist "people's front" leaders for France to let down the bars and help the Madrid government.

Germany and Italy are waiting to see what happens.

If Europe's heavily-armed leaders openly back the two Spanish forces, their conflict might any day fire the powder-trains to world war arsenals.

1,000,000 Dead Is Price of Spain's War

By The Associated Press

SALAMANCA, Spain, July 17—The price of one year of Spain's civil war: 1,000,000 lives of men, women and children.

The figure is an appropriation, for the toll was levied in devious, unaudited ways—collected in the heat of battle, checked off against pocked walls by a firing squad or marked up to the account of artillery shells and aerial bombs.

Generalissimo Francisco Franco leader of Spain's insurgents, proclaimed it a "year of triumph" and ordered all communications and public documents for the next 12 months to be dated as of the "second year of triumph."

Other "years of triumph" will follow, according to the insurgent view.

Celebrate Anniversary

Starting yesterday, all of insurgent-held Spain took on a fiesta spirit in celebration of the close of one year of conflict. Franco inaugurated the celebration with an oration in an ancient cathedral of Salamanca, his capital and general headquarters.

His proclamation commemorated those of his following who were lost in the year's campaign to overthrow the Madrid-Valencia government and dedicated their sacrifice to "the new era of the future."

The future...an old Spanish proverb says that revolution in Spain always runs through a cycle of seven years. If that proves true, this war has at least another year to run, for it was five years or so in the making.

But the spark that touched off the conflagration flared just a year ago today in Spanish Morocco. Many battles on many fronts have been fought since that day form the northern to the southern coasts.

The insurgent forces, improving daily as a war machine, have captured by direct attack six of Spain's 11 major cities: Seville, Malaga, Zaragoza, Cordoba, Granada and most recently Bilbao.

Three Cities Strongholds

The three great civil centers—the former capital, Madrid and the huge seaports of Barcelona and Valencia (the latter is temporary seat of the Spanish government)—form the basis of the government's defense against Franco.

Franco looks to the day—he regards it as inevitable—when all his resources of men and materials can be thrown against these three centers.

"Every day strengthens the Nationalist (insurgent) cause and weakens the Red (government) defenses," he said. "Every day adds to our organization and resources and detracts from theirs."

The insurgent command has learned how to use its strength efficiently and, as far as losses are concerned, "economically." The smashing of the Basque "iron ring" defending Bilbao a month ago demonstrated how Franco has saved his land forces.

In the Bilbao offensive his troops would lay back while as many as 40 bombing planes would concentrate on an enemy position, blasting it to dust, while hundreds of big cannon pounded the Basque line with shells.

These methods opened a path for the infantrymen who took stronghold after stronghold in the mountainous Basque country with astonishingly small losses.

FRANC AT LOWEST MARK IN 11 YEARS

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17—A new flight of French "hot money" across the English channel today sent the franc plummeting downward to its lowest level in 11 years and raised fears in Wall Street of a second financial crisis in Paris within the month.

There were few transactions in New York, the rate here being based on the London quotation where excited trading ruled as French funds were poured into the market.

HULL VOICES VIEWS ON FOREIGN POLICY

Says United States Advocates National and International Self Restraint.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 17 — The state department kept in close touch today with the Sino-Japanese situation after Secretary Hull in a general declaration of American foreign policy urged "national and international self-restraint."

His statement did not name either Japan or China, but said:

"We advocate abstinence by all nations from the use of force in pursuit of policy and from interference in the internal affairs of other nations.

"We advocate adjustment of problems in international relations by processes of peaceful negotiation and agreement.

"We advocate faithful observance of international agreements, upholding the principle of the sanctity of treaties."

While Hull surveyed the situation brought about by sporadic clashes between Japanese and Chinese troops in North China, President Roosevelt was understood to be concerned with preparations against any emergency requiring invocation of the neutrality act.

The act provides that when the President shall find a state of war exists, he shall prohibit exportation of arms, ammunition and implements of war to both belligerents, and place an embargo on loans or credits to them.

The neutrality law now is in operation in the Spanish civil war.

Some observers found Hull's statement applicable to the Spanish situation, regarding which Undersecretary Welles previously has declared that nations with opposing political beliefs have assisted warring factions.

Hull's conferences yesterday with the Chinese ambassador and Japanese charge d'affaires, and his long round-table discussions with the state department's far eastern experts, however, made the declaration of American policy particularly timely to the situation in North China.

DUFFY SEES PAROLE PROBE AS "LONG JOB"

Says Month May Be Required To Gather Data.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy predicted today his inquiry of state board of parole operations would be "a long police job."

"It probably will be a month before we get our data together," Duffy said.

He announced that Eugene Carlin, an assistant attorney general, would aid him in the investigation. Carlin is former prosecuting attorney of Wayne county.

The inquiry, requested by three board members, followed a series of newspaper articles linking Leland S. Dougan, board chairman, with a man who allegedly represented himself as being able to influence consideration of paroles.

CIO TO QUESTION RIGHTS OF SHERIFF

By The Associated Press

CANTON, O., July 17—Legal right of the sheriff of Stark county to prohibit picketing will be thrashed out in common pleas court here Monday when the CIO will ask for an order preventing the sheriff from interfering with picketing at plants of Republic Steel Corp.

The union will contend that Sheriff Joseph T. Nist has disbanded all picket lines in violation of a court order now in effect permitting peaceful picketing and fixing the number of pickets permitted at each plant gate.

FIFTH RAIN IN FIVE DAYS HITS COUNTY

61. The mercury stood at 78 degrees at noon today.

Reports of storm damage in Marion were few. A window glass in a house on Flos avenue was broken by wind and tree limbs and branches were blown down in some sections.

The Scioto river was rising slowly at Prospect and Green Camp this morning. It rose two feet at Prospect yesterday, however, reaching a stage of 7.70 feet this morning, still considerably under the 10-foot flood stage. At LaRue, where flood stage is 11 feet, the river stood at 9.56 feet this morning but was reported to be dropping slowly. It rose a foot at LaRue yesterday.

The river was bank-full at most points along its course and had flooded bottomlands.

Prospect had 1.35 inches of rain last night. A brilliant lightning display accompanied the rain and a tree on a farm northeast of town was struck. The thunder and lightning were most severe about 3:30 a. m. today. Many fields and lowlands were covered with standing water today. A chimney on the V. R. Harrell home, near Prospect, was blown down by the wind.

Rainfall at LaRue measured .59 of an inch, most of which fell last night.

Rain Far Above Normal

Marion's record rainfall of 2.73 inches in eight days is far above the total July rainfall in several years since 1900, Dr. E. H. Raffensperger, official weather observer here, reported. Average July rainfall is 4.23 inches, or only an inch and a half more than the total for the first 17 days this year.

The gods of rain will have to work overtime, however, if they hope to beat a mark set up July, 1915, when 9.53 inches of rain were recorded. Other rainy July's occurred in 1906, with 8.07 inches, and in 1907, with 7.65 inches.

The first eight days of this month were without rain, the avalanche of water beginning on the ninth day. Starting again on the twelfth, the rains kept up every day this week.

OHIO STORMS KILL ONE, CAUSE HEAVY DAMAGE

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms struck again in scattered sections of Ohio last night and Tuesday, taking a heavy toll in property damage and one life, that of William Thomson, 65 of Xenia, struck by lightning.

Thompson and his brother-in-law, Clarence Riley, 49, were struck by a lightning bolt as they walked along a creek bank. Riley, stunned, was knocked into the creek where he clung for 15 minutes to the branch of a tree before he was rescued.

A physician said partial insulation provided by rubber boots worn by Riley probably saved his life.

Widely separated Toledo and Steubenville reported the worst storm damage.

Trees and electric wires and poles were blown down at Toledo causing power service to be disrupted in many sections of the city. Radio station WSPD was off the air for several hours when a 125-foot section of the station's 216-foot radio tower was blown down.

Seven women were injured at Steubenville when wind ripped a section of roof from a building of the Weirton Steel Co.'s tin mill. The women were showered with broken glass. Roofs were torn away from many houses in the mill section, and trees and power lines were blown down.

The Mercer county apple crop was badly damaged by a wind and rain storm, with corn and oats also suffering. The roof was blown off the plant of the Celina Manufacturing Co., and streets were filled with fallen trees and power and telephone lines.

A storm in the northern part of Hamilton county tore a metal roof from the elevator of a feed mill at Reading, and ripped a section of roof from a fertilizer plant at Lockland. Crops were badly damaged in this section.

Several creeks near Bridgeport were forced out of their banks, flooding about 50 homes and carrying away lowland crops. At Sandusky trees were uprooted and other minor damage was reported.

Cleveland again was struck by a heavy wind and rain storm but escaped the damage of the preceding night, although a number of trees were blown down in residential sections.

Northern Ohio records showed 22 rainy days since June 1, rainfall 7.49 inches above normal.

TREE LIMBS FALL IN GALION STORM

Special to The Star

GALION, July 17 — Lightning, wind and rain traveled into Galion with black clouds again Friday night. The storm struck the city at 8:30 o'clock and for a while citizens feared a repetition of Thursday night's storm.

More lightning and rain accompanied the storm this time. The wind was high enough to take with it a few limbs from trees, and one big tree on North Market street near the William Bessinger home blocked the street to traffic. A heavy rain fell.

Around 2 p. m., Friday, lightning and wind terrorized the citizens for several minutes, but the storm lasted only for a short time, and no heavy damage was reported.

TREES BLOWN DOWN IN HARDIN COUNTY

Special to The Star

KENTON, July 17 — Rainfall measuring 1.01 inches fell here yesterday afternoon and last night, accompanied by a high wind. Wind damage was slight here, however.

Southern Hardin county was struck by a severe rain and windstorm which blew down trees and crops in and near Ridgeway and Mt. Victory.

OMITS RAIN

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—Meteorologist John Fisher's prediction today of fair and cooler weather for tonight and Sunday broke a 10-day record of continuous forecasts of rain or thundershowers for Ohio.

The last day when no rain was predicted was July 7, the start of a heat wave in the state which apparently ended today.

Laugh Pictures in Spot On Week's Palace Bill

"New Faces of 1937," "Meet the Missus" and Joe Brown Comedy Hold Plenty of Humor.

Laughs with a capital "L" for the entire week are promised in the Palace lineup, starting with today's opening of the new musical extravaganza, "New Faces of 1937."

Following on Wednesday, the amusing team of Victor Moore and Helen Broderick will be seen in "Meet the Missus," and Thursday will start a three-day showing of Joe E. Brown's latest comedy, "Riding on Air."

Heading the elaborate cast of "New Faces" are Milton Berle, Joe Penner and Parkyakarkus, with Harriet Hilliard in the leading feminine role and William Brady, Jerome Cowan and Thelma Leeds topping the supporting talent.

An array of radio and vaudeville acts is brought into the show-within-a-show way of telling the story. Eight new songs are introduced, "Peckin'," "It Goes to Your Feet," "Love Is Never Out of Season," "Penthouse on Third Avenue," "If I Didn't Have You," "New Faces," "The Widow In Lace" and "When the Berry Blossoms Bloom," a specialty number sung by Penner.

The Loria Brothers, seven Mexican boys ranging in age from four to 14, who sing, dance and play Spanish instruments, are one of the many novelty acts in the picture. Miss Hilliard made her first screen appearance with Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire in "Follow the Fleet."

The latest "March of Time" episode will be shown on the same bill. This issue headlines episodes on "U. S. Dust Bowl," "Dogs for Sale" and "Poland and War."

Victor Moore and Helen Broderick made their first hit together in "Swing Time," then they were co-starred in "We're on the Jury," and now they're starred again in "Meet the Missus." Anne Shirley and Alan Bruce have the romantic leads. A noodle company's contest campaign to select the nation's best housewife forms the theme of the story. Finals of the contest, which Miss Broderick enters much against her husband's better judgment, are held in Atlantic City and most of the action takes place at that resort.

Joe E. Brown takes to the air in his latest story, "Riding on Air." Florence Rice, daughter of the noted sports writer, Grantland Rice, plays opposite Brown and Guy Kibbee plays the male lead. The star is a one-man staff of a weekly paper in a little Wisconsin town. He takes on the job of being correspondent for a big Chicago daily and endeavors to help a fellow-townsman promote the development of an airplane which he flies by radio beam remote control.

Along with these activities runs his romance with the belle of the town in the face of the opposition of a wealthy rival. Most of the action takes place in and around the small Wisconsin town, with sequences in a Chicago hotel, newspaper offices and the Chicago airport.

One of the things in which Joe E. takes his greatest pride is his record for clean pictures. He's proud of his enormous fan mail, chiefly because it contains many letters from parents who write that they have come to count on his pictures as safe bets for their children's entertainment.

A pillow fitting around the neck to absorb vibrations has been invented for riders in the back seats of automobiles.

MYSTERY FILLS MARION BILL

Plenty of Action, Too, in Program on Screen for Next Week.

Mystery and action will be found in the Marion's double feature bill of "Night Key" and "California Straight Ahead!", on Sunday and Monday. Boris Karloff, star of "Night Key," is supported by J. Warren Hull, Jean Rogers and Alan Baxter. It is the horror man's first "straight" role on the screen. He plays an elderly inventor who thinks up a device that will open any kind of a lock by projecting waves of electricity at it. He is swindled out of this invention by his former partner who owns a burglar alarm protection service. Then he starts throwing switches and the action begins.

John Wayne is the star of "California Straight Ahead," with Robert McWade, Louise Latimer and Tully Marshall in supporting roles. Wayne, superintendent of a large truck company, and Theodore von Eltz, railroad executive are rivals not only in the transcontinental freight hauling business but also for the hand of Miss Latimer.

The Dionne Quintuplet's second picture, "Reunion," will return for the Tuesday-Wednesday bill with "Racketeers in Exile," a drama featuring three well-known players, George Bancroft, Evelyn Venable and Wynne Gibson. The Dionne picture gives the world an opportunity to see the five little girls beginning to grow up. They have the Will Rogers acting technique of making up their performances as they go along and it clicks. Jean Hersholt is again the country doctor and Dorothy Peterson is again their head nurse. Others in the cast include Rochelle Hudson, Helen Vinson, Slim Summerville, Robert Kent and John Qualen, who plays the role of Papa Dionne.

A public enemy, a man who makes religion a racket, is the role virile George Bancroft plays in "Racketeers in Exile." He falls prey to his own false, eloquent preachings, climaxing his career with a ruthless attack on crime. Bancroft and his mob are driven to cover by G-Men and hide out in the small town where, as a youth, he had lived with his father, a preacher. He stumbles on a brand new racket when he finds he has a gift of oratory. Chuckling broadly, he starts touring the country as a fake evangelist.

The country's latest craze, girls' "softball" games, provides the theme of the picture, "Girls Can Play," which will be shown Thursday through Saturday on a double bill with another of the excellent Hopalong Cassidy action films, "North of the Rio Grande," in which William Boyd again plays the title role. Jacqueline Wells and Charles Quigley play the leading roles in "Girls Can Play."

OHIO STARS PLAY REAL ROMANCE.

Linked together romantically by the gossip columnists, Robert Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck are teamed together in "This Is My Affair," now showing at the Ohio. Victor McLaglen is the third star in the cast. The picture will continue through Tuesday.

BORIS KARLOFF FILM RETURNS

"The Walking Dead" Will Show on Double Bill at State Theater.

"The Walking Dead," reputed to have caused more nightmares than any of Boris Karloff's former horror pictures, will return to the State Sunday and Monday on a double bill with—no laughs intended in the titles—"We Have Our Moments," a romance co-featuring Sally Eilers and James Dunn.

Tuesday and Wednesday "Larceny on the Air" featuring Grace Bradley and Robert Livingston. "Lawless Lands," an action picture starring Johnny Mack Brown, and chapter six of the Buck Jones aerial picture, "Roaring West."

The Thursday-Saturday bill will be made up of the musical romance, "Shipmates Forever," co-starring Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell, and a western, "Courage of the North."

The "Lindbergh Heart," an artificial organ created by the famous filer and Dr. Alexis Carrel, will be seen in operation in "The Walking Dead." This apparatus, which is in reality a mechanical blood circulating system, is mainly responsible for bringing back to life in the film scene of a man who had been electrocuted.

The story centers about the reanimation of a man who has been electrocuted for murder, but who is proved to be innocent of the crime almost immediately after his execution. Scientists restore him to life and the victim of a frameup by racketeers lives again.

Not knowing who his prosecutors were when alive, the walking dead man instinctively seeks them out and without doing any violent act himself, brings them all to their deaths, two of them by the very method in which he himself died, although accidental.

Edmund Gwenn, famous English actor, plays the role of the doctor who brings Karloff to life. Ricardo Cortez is the suave and polished racketeer, acting as attorney for a band of crooks to which he belongs. Other members of the gang are Barton MacLane, Paul Harvey, Robert Strange, Joseph Sawyer, Eddie Acuff and Kenneth Harlan.

The love interest is supplied by Marguerite Churchill and Warren Hull, assistants to Gwenn.

GOOD PROGRAM BOOKED BY OHIO

Well-Known Stars in Screen Attraction At Local Theater Next Week.

Robert Taylor, Barbara Stanwyck and Victor McLaglen are starred in the current Ohio offering, "This Is My Affair," one of the important summer releases, booked for showings through Tuesday.

A double program Wednesday and Thursday will feature the amusing Jones family in another adventure, "Big Business," and Gloria Stuart and Michael Whalen in "The Lady Escapes."

Charles O. Rice and Fred M. Cady who played for President McKinley at the old Chase theater in Washington and who were present at the time of McKinley's assassination, make their picture debut in "This Is My Affair." The comedy team, now in their fortieth year together, play in a cafe sequence, using the same "Goo Goo Eyes" skit they played in Washington at the turn of the century. Rice and Cady started in practically every Weber and Fields minstrel show to go on the road and when vaudeville's popularity declined years ago they moved to Hollywood, playing clubs and occasional vaudeville dates. They claim the oldest active team in the theatrical world today.

Setting its scene at the turn of the century, the picture shows the nation's stability threatened by a series of sensational bank robberies in the middle west. President McKinley turns in desperation to his young lieutenant, Taylor, whose record under Admiral Dewey speaks his valor. The young lieutenant, sworn to secrecy, is ordered to disgrace himself in the Navy, be discharged and eventually join the bank-robbing gang and get government informant. The western criminal's hangout is known to be a cafe owned by McLaglen, his right-hand man, Brian Donlevy, and the singing and dancing star of the cafe's show, Miss Stanwyck. He notes that the two men have acquired large sums of money and that their absence from the city coincides with a bank robbery in another city. Joining the gang in a robbery during which a secret service man is killed, Taylor is arrested with the others and at the climax, faces the prospect of the gallows when the only man who can clear his name, the President, is assassinated.

The Jones Family becomes involved with the get-rich-quick fever in their latest comedy, "Big Business." Dad Jones, Jed Prouty, turns high pressure stock salesman and the family dream of sudden wealth from a wildcat oilwell boom.

"The Lady Escapes" treats lightly the light housekeeping of two married lovers who hold back mainly to keep their flirtation from becoming. Miss Stuart and Whalen are teamed in a martial version of marital life which culminates in an attempt to find a second husband for her before he goes to Reno. The desire of Whalen to find his wife a second husband is soon changed, however, in his new-found effort to remain her first and only. The comedy was adapted from the novel, "My Second Wife," by Eugene Heltai, Hungarian author.

UNUSUAL SUIT IN HARDIN CO. COURT

Special to The Star

KENTON, O., July 17—A suit, only one of its kind in Hardin county court records, was filed in common pleas court today by E. B. Wetherill. He seeks to give Trustee Carter W. Schwemer authority to distribute 100 pounds sterling to a missionary union in London, England.

Mary Cowan died on May 24, 1933, and left that sum to the London society. Edward K. Campbell of Bellefontaine, estate executor, refused to pay the money to the claiming union because its name was different than the name of the one in the will. To close the estate of which Mrs. Ella V. Ewing of Kenton was a beneficiary, Campbell received permission to set up the trusteeship. Schwemer now seeks permission to distribute approximately $500 to the missionary union in London, England, which claims the money.

Rain Speeds Up Program At City Playgrounds

Playground programs at the Lincoln and McKinley parks were speeded up yesterday afternoon by rain, and at the Marion Steam Shovel playground a heavy rain made any program impossible. The programs are weekly events, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A., as part of the daily playground activities.

Approximately 150 children gathered at the Shovel playground but a heavy rain at the opening hour forced the leader to postpone the entire program until next Friday afternoon. Announcement was made, however, that the complimentary tickets given at all playgrounds each week by J. J. Huebner, manager of the Ohio theater, to the boy and girl doing the most noteworthy act, were awarded to Genevieve Wright and Robert Barr.

At Lincoln park the more than 100 boys and girls gathered for play went into the shelter house when the downpour started and continued the program. Before the rain the boys participated in two bicycle races, the first of which was won by Jack Darling, first, Harold Garver, second, and Paul Fom, third. In the second race, much longer, Arthur Siegle placed first, Tom Young, second, and Robert Miller, third.

The girls presented a variety program opening with a playlet, "Little Orphan Annie," which was directed by the leader, Miss Twila Gilbreck. The playlet was given by Maxine Darling, Kathleen and Agnes Welch, Carol Darling, Evelyn Bacon and Vivian Woolley. Fay Kuhn gave a recitation. Vivian Woolley tap danced. Evelyn Bacon sang, Maxine Darling and Agnes Welch sang a duet number and Evelyn Bacon entertained with acrobatic stunts and a novelty tap dance. Catherine Welch and Edmund Young won the theater passes.

A treasure hunt at McKinley park, participated in by approximately 125 boys and girls, was speeded up by threat of rain. The main prize was won by Martha Porter. Other prizes went to Dale Healea, Donald Cope, Paul Bowman, Rud Truka, Gene Foley, Priscilla Bughes, Shirley Ebert and Homer Thorpe. Theater passes were awarded Janice Ebert and Roland Beach.

Addison Bain, casting expert will give demonstrations next Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Lincoln park and at the same hour on Wednesday at McKinley park. On Wednesday at the Marion Steam Shovel playground about a dozen boys took lessons.

Stunts and games arranged for yesterday at the Shovel playground will be conducted next Friday. At McKinley park there will be bicycle races for boys and girls and a series of balloon races and contest. The Lincoln park program next Friday will include a picnic lunch at noon and games and stunts in the afternoon. Clarence Lenz, boys' work secretary for the Y. M. C. A., announced.

The Huck Finn jeasues for junior and senior softball and hardball players will get underway next week.

Members of the Knot Hole Gang boys and girls who by registering with their playground leader have been given membership, will meet at the Lincoln park stadium next Friday at 3 p. m. to be guests of the Marion state league ball team management for a game with Mansfield.

MIKE JACOBS
MIKE MAY NOT BE ANOTHER RICKARD, BUT HE IS THE FIRST PROMOTOR TO BREAK THE GARDEN MONOPOLY ON THE HEAVY TITLE A HERITAGE FROM TEX
SHADES OF TEX-
JOE LOUIS IS UNCLE MIKE'S CHAMP!

Not since the palmy days of the one and only Tex Rickard has one man dominated the promotorial scene of fistiana as Michael Strauss Jacobs does today

Uncle Mike may not be another Rickard there was only one Tex—but he's certainly the head man among presentday mismates of maul His rise to the top has been spectacular and sudden In the space of a couple of years Mike has risen from an obscure ticket broker to the most influential position in the fight world

You may call it luck without the advent of Joe Louis it might never have happened—yet the canny Jacobs has outsmarted all his rivals in no uncertain fashion

For the first time since Rickard's day Madison Square Garden's stranglehold on the heavyweight title has been broken and Mike was the lad who turned the trick

With so many legal tangles involved clever maneuvering was necessary to crack the Garden monopoly but with the aid of Joe Louis heavy fists Jacobs not only acquired control of the heavy crown but brought back a new golden era of boxing

UPSETS PLENTIFUL IN BIG LEAGUES AS LEADERS TAKE DIVES

Yanks, Giants, Cubs Lose; Indians Again Trounce Senators, 11-5

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Writer

The national pastime had a somewhat screwy slant today

The National league gave signs of falling apart in vital spots like a 1919 model car, the Yankees and Tigers put on a burlesque that may have been entertaining to a circus sideshow, but certainly not to any fan who paid to see a ball game 43 pitchers paraded from bull pen to mound to showers in nine games 120 runs were scored and 224 hits banged out, there were more duffier finishes than a jig saw puzzle

Out of the merry-go-round the Cubs staggered with their same three percentage point margin over the Giants in the National league race although both neededlost to defeat The Yanks roundly whipped in the freakest fenagling of the year had their American league lead cut to 6½ games

Both the Giants and the Cubs by their performances of the last few days seem to be out to out lose each other in their close fight for the National league lead The Cubs were crippled by Lou Fette's three hit pitching yesterday and lost a 9 1 decision to the Boston Bees

The Giants given a chance to climb back into the drivers seat threw it away by handing the Pittsburgh Pirates an unearned run in the 11 h inning and a 5 decision

As a result the Bucs and St Louis Gashouse gang of Cardinals are back within shooting distance of the pace setters again The Cards knocked the stuffing out of eight pitchers yesterday as they clubbed the Phillies 10 3 and 18 10 in a doubleheader to move back into a third place tie with the Pirates St Johnson was the winning pitcher in both ends going the route in the opener and the last two frames of the afterpiece

Screwiest of all was the shindig put on by the Yanks and Tigers before the Detroits came through with a 14 7 win Shut out for five innings the Tigers exploded in the sixth and scored seven runs But the payoff was that they collected just one safe hit during the rally Seven walks and a pair of errors were handed them on a platter by the foes Old feature Gerry Walker striking out twice during the inning to tie the big league mark

Brooklyn fans were razzed over the 6-5 thumpings the Dodgers handed the Reds Although they knocked 19 hits all over the lot the Brooklyn beauties had to put on a three run rally in the ninth to win

Pinky Higgins homer gave the Red Sox a 6 4 victory over the St Louis Browns The Chicago White Sox breezed in with a 9 4 win over the Athletics The Indians cuffed the Senators again 11 5

It was Al Hollingsworth for the Reds and Deacon Danny MacFayden for the Bees today as the seventh place Cincinnati team opened with the fifth ranking Boston club

The American league leading New York Yankees invaded League park today threatening to end the four game winning streak compiled by the Indians against Chicago and Washington

Dennis Galehouse who was particularly effective against the Yankees last year was Manager Steve O'Neill's choice as the starting hurler for the Tribe while Irving Bump Hadley was scheduled to take the hill for the world champions

Tomorrow the two teams move to Cleveland stadium with Bob Feller slated to try his speed against the Yankee sluggers

Following an announcement yesterday by President Alva Bradley of the Indians that there would be no mid-season change in management of the Cleveland team Manager Steve O'Neill set a fighting example for his players by issuing a challenge for fisticuffs to pitcher Carl Fischer of the Washington Senators

The challenge was not accepted as other players intervened Fischer was released by O'Neill from the Cleveland team last spring

SALLY ELSON TAKES OHIO WOMAN'S GOLF TITLE IN 4-3 MATCH

Underdog Columbus Girl Downs Isabel Ogilvie in 36-Hole Finals.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O. July 17—Little Sally Elson of Columbus five feet two inches tall and weighing 115 ruled Ohio's feminine golf domain today

On her sunburned brow was perched jauntily the crown she won the last three years by Mrs B Well of Cincinnati Sally accomplished yesterday with her blazing finish in a 4 and 3 decision over Miss Isabel Ogilvie of Cleveland in the 36-hole finals of the 18th annual Women's State tourney at the Country club

The diminutive Sally a decided underdog as the match got under way played some of the best golf of her career to win She was one up even at the end of nine one up at 18 and even again at 27 holes As she and Miss Ogilvie staged a nip and tuck battle for the laurels

On the last nine however Miss Elson's red hot putter started working and she won four of the last five holes A 25-foot putt trickled into the cup for her on the 29th for a sizzling birdie On the 30th an 18 footer found its mark for another win A par 5 clinched the 31st for her as Miss Ogilvie explored a trap and took a stroke The next was halved in par fours but the 33rd provided the finale as Miss Elson on an 60-yard approach to within 6 inches of the cup for another birdie

The 24 year old champion, already the Franklin county queen was the third Columbus resident to take the state title Mrs Curtis Sell won in 1921 and 1929 and the late Mrs Thornton Emmons won in 1933 as representatives of the capital city

Miss Ogilvie who had eliminated three favorites as she won her way to the final's was not up to standard in the finals In the earlier rounds she had eliminated Miss Eva Shorb of Massillon Mrs Sohl and Mrs Well coming from behind on the last nine to win each match As a result of her achievements she was in odds on favorite to take the title but she was unable to match strokes with Miss Elson on the last nine after holding her even through three quarters of the match

STOCK MARKET SESSION DULL

Feeble Rallies by Few Issues Punctuate Drab Trading Period.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17—Feeble rallies in some of the steels, rails, motors, coppers and specialties punctuated today's drab stock market session.

Mild selling at the opening put prices down fractions to a point or more but offerings were so light bids were later hoisted in numerous instances.

It was one of the slowest days of the year, transfers running to around 250,000 shares for the two hours.

Traders apparently found no great stimulation in another batch of favorable second quarter earnings statements. Restraining the buying urge, it was said, was the tenseness of the congressional court bill fight, darkening war clouds over the far east and a new French financial crisis.

Prices were well jumbled at the close.

The French franc, reflecting a new flight of capital from the Republic, broke to its lowest level in terms of the dollar since 1926.

Bonds developed no definite trends and commodities were uneven.

U. S. steel shares cancelled a 1-point drop at the opening and later tacked on a gain. Bethlehem, Republic and Sloss-Sheffield did better.

Ahead most of the time—some slipped at the last—were Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears, Roebuck, U. S. Rubber, Kennecott, Westinghouse and New York Central.

Unchanged to lower were Youngstown Sheet & Tube, General Motors, International Harvester, American Telephone and General Electric.

Utilities came in for further analytical attention in view of their better than average performance this week.

While difference of opinion exists as to the future profits outlook of the power and light companies, some quarters expressed the belief that, because of the rising tendencies of power consumption and the ability of many concerns to pare expenses net income this year should be at least as good as in 1936.

Those friendly to building company stocks noted figures of the F. W. Dodge Corp. disclosing construction in June topped the like month last year by 57 per cent.

MARION TRIPS REDS, 4-3, WITH HOME RUN

batter, Jablonski filed to Swed, end the inning and the ball game.

Chances Look Good

Marion today has an excellent opportunity to overtake the league leading Mansfield Red Sox within the next week. Tomorrow Marion will invade Fostoria for a double-header with the cellar-position Red Birds, while Mansfield will travel to Tiffin to face the highly dangerous Mud Hens. Both twin bills are set to start at 2 o'clock, and Marion will have the opportunity of turning in a double victory Sunday.

The outcome of today's clash of Marion and the Red Sox at Mansfield, likewise has a large bearing on the leadership in the race for the pennant. A victory over the Sox this afternoon would put Marion but two games out of first place. Idle next Monday, Marion will trek to Fremont Tuesday, take another crack at Mansfield in the Red Sox home park Wednesday, play at Tiffin Thursday and return to the home field at Lincoln park, Friday, against Mansfield.

RUST, HEAT REPORTS HELP WHEAT PRICES

Close, However, Is Fraction Below Yesterday's; Corn Shows Loss.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 17—Crop reporters' advices from the spring wheat belt telling of rapid development of rust in Manitoba, of heat damage ranging up to 60 per cent in sections of North Dakota and rust infestation on non-resistant grain helped bring enough buying into the wheat market today to keep prices fractionally above the previous close most of the time.

The market closed a shade lower however, when the modest buying power diminished and sales to insure commercial transactions or bring profits predominated.

Wheat closed ⅛ up to ⅛ lower, compared with yesterday's finish, July 1.28, September 1.27¾@28, and corn was ¼@1⅜ off, September 1.12¾@¾, December 80@80¼. Oats lost ⅛@1⅛.

TWO BOATS CALLED OFF EARHART HUNT

Airplanes and Carrier Also Expected To Quit Today.

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU, July 17—Tapering off the seemingly hopeless South Seas hunt for Amelia Earhart, the first two vessels in the search started homeward today. The aircraft carrier Lexington and three destroyers remained to comb the torrid areas where the aviatrix and her navigator vanished two weeks ago.

The coast guard cutter Itasca and mine sweeper Swan were ordered to return here from equatorial waters after completing a vain search of the Gilbert Islands, 600 miles west of bleak Howland Island.

On July 2, Miss Earhart and Frederick J. Noonan disappeared on a 2,570-mile flight from Lae, New Guinea to Howland, the most precarious hop on a world-girdling journey which Miss Earhart said was "just for fun."

The Itasca, her fuel running low, started back by way of Howland. The mine sweeper headed directly for Pearl Harbor here.

There was no announcement here concerning how long the Lexington with its 63 planes, and the three destroyers would remain in the search, which naval authorities have indicated will end today.

WASHINGTON, July 17—Navy department officials said today that unless there were new developments, the navy search for Amelia Earhart, flier lost in the Pacific, probably would be ended by Sunday.

OKLAHOMA BAD MEN LEAVE COLD TRAIL

By The Associated Press

SAPULPA, Okla., July 17—Three heavily-armed fugitives from a Texas prison farm who swore they would never be returned alive apparently had left a cool trail in Oklahoma today. Northeast Oklahoma officers continued to patrol the highways with orders to shoot to kill.

No trace of the convicts — Roy (Pete) Traxler, Charles Chapman, and Red Tindol—has been reported since they released Baird Markham Jr., son of a widly-known New York cit executive, near here yesterday.

Markham, kidnaped near Ada Thursday night, said the convicts told him they were bound for Canada.

MARKET VARIATIONS SLIGHT DURING WEEK

U. S. Steel Provides Leadership for Gains but Other Issues Fail To Follow.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 17—The stock market worked within narrow limits this week and many incipient rallies were thwarted by profit realization.

Toward the close it was about where it started although some divisions showed a scattering of modest gains.

One cheering note was that throughout the period volume was heavier on the advances and dropped when selling appeared.

U. S. Steel provided the forward leadership but failures of the rails and motors to respond chilled the list. Utilities were more resistant.

The death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, and the President's determination to press the supreme court issue, brokers said, kept many traders from activity. Industrial news, on the whole, was encouraging.

Steel operations were estimated at 82.7 per cent of capacity, a jump of 13.4 percentage points from the previous week. Labor troubles in that industry appeared lessened.

Electric power production was off more than seasonally, but railroad freight loadings showed a less than seasonal decline. The index of industrial activity moved moderately upward.

Bonds, although lightly traded, made a better showing than stocks. The tendency to higher levels appeared sustained. U. S. Government obligations moved forward. Toward the close, Japanese loans fell in reflection of the Sino-Japanese tension in North China.

Commodities were mixed. Wheat advanced on reports of rust damage to the spring crop and a drouth-reduced Canadian toll. Cotton was lower.

AWAIT NEXT STEP OF "MR. MAE WEST"

Significance of Proving Marriage Not Yet Disclosed.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, July 17 — The judge finally said yes to hoofer Frank Wallace's appeal for recognition as Mae West's husband, but now that Wallace has got it, everybody was wondering, what has he got?

True, Superior Judge Robert Kenny ordered "Diamond Lil" to pay costs of Wallace's suit, but he declined to decide whether they had ever lived together as man and wife.

That, he said, might be a matter of "historical interest," but it was not pertinent to the suit. Wallace's lawyers protested such disposal of the case but didn't reveal what their next step would be.

Wallace's purpose in establishing the marriage has never been disclosed. Miss West denied it for some time—"It's just one of those things you do in your spare time in Milwaukee" she said—but finally admitted she and Wallace were married in the Wisconsin city in 1911.

NAZARENE CAMP MEETING OPENS

The fourteenth annual evangelistic camp meeting of the Ohio district Church of the Nazarene which opened today just outside Columbus will be attended from time to time next week by members of Marion First church.

Among those who expect to attend are Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Davidson, Mrs. J. D. Wise and Mrs. William Dowler.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Haines went to Columbus today to stay for the entire camp period. Others who expected to go today and Sunday include Mr. and Mrs. Carl Campbell, Mrs. Lucile Barnhart and Mrs. Frank Shearer.

JURY SHOWN NEWS REEL SHOTS OF RIOT

Photographer Testifies Strikers Threw Stones First.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 17—The movie camera's version of the Memorial day steel strike riot was added today to the record compiled by a coroner's jury seeking to fix responsibility for the deaths of 10 men killed in the sanguinary battle between strikers and police.

A Paramount Co. newsreel taken by Orlando Lippert was shown to the six-man jury after the photographer testified the rioting was "undoubtedly precipitated by rocks thrown into police lines by strikers."

Coroner Frank Walsh adjourned the inquest yesterday until Monday.

The newsreel which has been banned from Chicago theaters by the police censor—recorded most of the brief clash in the vicinity of Republic Steel corporation's South Chicago plant. More than 100 persons, including policemen, were injured.

Lippert testified the film did not show the missiles being thrown at police because he was changing lens at the time. He said he saw no violence committed by police before the missiles were hurled. His aide, Harold A. Witt, testified he saw "20 or 25" clubs in the hands of strikers.

TONSILS REMOVED

TOWNSHIP OFFICIAL NAMED IN SHORTAGE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 17—State Examiner F. P. Householder and Leo E. Plymire reported to the state bureau of inspection today that G. E. Lamm, clerk of Bethel township, Clark county, had admitted a shortage of $2,180 in his accounts.

The shortage had been brought about allegedly by the issuance of false warrants for sums ranging from $12.50 to $32.50 from Jan. 8, 1935, to March 20, 1937, the report stated.

While Lamm was held directly liable for the sum and promised to pay it back "as soon as possible," the examiners said the New Carlisle bank which cashed the checks also was responsible to the township. The checks had been drawn to numerous fictitious names. The examiners said Lamm admitted using the money himself.

Expert Warns Against Coddling Crying Child

TEARS ARE CONTAGIOUS.

This is one of a series of Associated Press articles on child development and guidance.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
Associated Press Writer.

NEW YORK—Falling off the see saw isn't such a calamity despite Billy's howls. Set him on his feet, and tell him it's really not worth crying about.

That's the advice given by Miss Angela Capraro, head teacher in the Kips Bay Nursery school in New York. Most mothers, she says, are oversolicitous in dealing with their children.

"Adults have to get used to life's hard knocks," she asserts, keeping an eye on 20 or so happy youngsters playing about the roof of the nursery. "They aren't able to cry about them. It's the same way with children. After a few tumbles, they won't think of crying."

But the method isn't so brutal as it sounds. The nursery school teachers don't ignore their tearful charges. They're right on the spot when the catastrophe occurs, in case of serious damage. But they try hard not to do too much coddling.

They are firm if one child is hurting another.

"Children strike out because they can't express their wishes," Miss Capraro explains.

"Charlie there (pointing to a child in blue overalls) grabs toys right away from other youngsters. He doesn't know enough to ask for what he wants. We have to tell him. We have to explain to Peter, whom he just scratched, that Charlie didn't mean to hurt him.

"It takes time, which many parents don't have, and plenty of patience. Tears are contagious, too. Let one child burst forth, and all his neighbors join in. They have no reason for crying. They're just imitative."

Good For Mothers.

Now and then nursery school methods clash with the home system. One week several mothers came to assist the staff as preparation for a prospective open house. The sympathetic parents were emotionally exhausted at the end of the day. Every child's hurt they made into a mountain, instead of realizing it was a mole hill.

But it's an excellent plan, Miss Capraro thinks, for mothers to come to the nursery school. "They develop an objective point of view in regard to their children when they see them among many others. They learn to resist their impulses to comfort the youngsters."

The result of this lack of coddling?

More independence and initiative in the two and three-year-olds. Kips Bay youngsters wash their own faces and hands; hang up their own washcloths in the proper place; feed themselves; think up their own games; and are better controlled.

MOTORIST FINED IN WALDO COURT

Stewart Myers, 18, of near Camberl, Va., was arrested by highway patrolmen from the Marion substation last night at 8 o'clock on route 23, south of Waldo, on a charge of driving without an operator's license. MARRYING A DICTATOR

Lots of American women fancy that they are already married to "dictatorn" but that is merely a bit of hyperbole. Just because your husband insists on censoring your hats, your make-up and your women friends, does not put him in the Mussolini class.

Yet, a bona fide dictator might sometimes be rather refreshing to have around the house — who knows? At least, with a husband like that, you would know where you stood. And you wouldn't lie awake nights wondering about the climate of Reno, or if a Mexican divorce was legal.

There would be no before-breakfast arguments in a menage where there was only one vote, one opinion, and one wearer of "slacks." Neither would there be any servant problem, nor any discussion as to who would go out and tell the cook that the roast was overdone and the pudding inedible. Nor any scrapping as to who should have the first look at the newspaper. Perhaps you wouldn't care to read a newspaper, anyhow.

You'd never have to decide things for yourself, and that would be a comfort. When dull and importunate people asked you out for a dinner party, you'd merely say, "I'll ask my husband"—and that would settle it. He'd never make you the goat, by saying, "I'll see what the wife says—" when he wanted to crawl out of going.

After all, life must be very peaceful for the wife of a man who knows his own mind—and has the nerve to speak it. A no-husband!

Nerve! That's what the American husband lacks. Nerve to make his own children behave, keep his own servants in awe, and run his own house.

All the nerve in America is cornered by the bachelors. They have more of it than any other set of bachelors in the world. But once you get them all the way up the middle-aisle to the altar, it oozes right out of them and they become yes-husbands.

An American husband, as I have so often remarked, is "what is left of a bachelor after the nerve has been removed." He may be a tyrant or a Simon Legree around his office, but in his own home he is just a pacifist—usually as silent as the "I" in ptomaine.

He doesn't want the responsibility of deciding things. And, until there is a divorce, a scandal, or a murder in the family, he'd rather dine-in to the whole bunch and sneak off and play golf, than argue about things.

He keeps his religion, his culture, and his morals all in his wife's name, and leaves all the social and domestic decisions to her. And then wonders why his opinions and tastes are never consulted, and why he feels like a stranger in somebody else's harem, around his own home!
